In Memoriam

With the passing of Charles N. Dickinson, Hollins Alumnae lose a warm friend and a valuable teacher. Mr. Dickinson, who was in his seventy-third year, had been a teacher all his life and a member of the Hollins Faculty for twenty-five years. He was born in Nottoway County, Virginia, and was educated at Hampden-Sydney College and the University of Virginia. He taught in many southern states and was principal of several schools. In 1906 he came to Hollins as Professor of Mathematics, which position he held actively until his illness last November. In 1924 he became secretary of the faculty. His whole life centered around his academic relations. He thoroughly identified himself with Hollins and had a sympathetic understanding of the student's viewpoint, gleaned from his long years of personal contact with his students.

Mr. Dickinson was a lover of good books and took great pride in his personal library. He was exceedingly well informed, both through reading and travel, and he looked upon modern affairs with the broadmindedness which comes from knowledge. His life was ruled by exact routine which he followed with Kantian regularity. In all his dealings he was known as kind and absolutely trustworthy.

To-day we can add little in estimation of his character and in recognition of his place in the hearts of Hollins girls to the tribute paid him in 1921 when the Spinster was dedicated to him in these words: "With the love of every Hollins girl, we dedicate this volume of 'The Spinster' to Charles N. Dickinson in deepest appreciation of his never-failing sympathy with all our college interests and the example of the unselfishness which he has constantly held before us." Understanding teacher and loyal friend to Hollins and all her daughters, Mr. Dickinson held a place in the life of Hollins which will be hard to fill.—From Hollins Student Life.

SUMMER ISSUE, 1932

A CHANGE IN POLICY

THE ALUMNÆ QUARTERLY will go to active members only, beginning with the October issue. The Summer issue you find marked, "Complimentary" if you are one of those who have not paid your Alumnæ dues once within the five years of intensive organization. You have just received a statement for dues from the Alumnæ Office. Hunt it up and send in your check so that your name will be among those found in this first active list of Hollins Alumnæ, and so that you won't miss your QUARTERLY after this.

We take pride, of course, in the fact that our list of Alumnæ with whom we have made contacts is approaching five thousand. We dislike to temper that feeling with the opposite and less pleasurable sensation, nevertheless, we believe that you ought to know that the greatest number paying their membership dues in any one year, was some six hundred odd. It doesn't take a great deal of figuring to bring you to the same conclusion reached by your representatives in the Annual Meeting, namely, that it is impossible to organize an Alumnæ Office to take care of nearly five thousand Alumnæ on a budget supported by about one fifteenth of that number, or about five cents per capita.

When we were discussing the matter of changing our policy on membership many were amazed that so inclusive a plan had been practised this long. But such a plan was purposely followed because of the realization that it would take a number of years to build an Alumnæ organization and find out who were interested in becoming active members. Therefore, at the outset of the Endowment Campaign we decided to send all of our Alumnæ and College publications to the entire list of Alumnæ. The plan has been continued for five years in order to cultivate the interest of as many Alumnæ as possible. However it is now evident that we are in danger of retarding the development of our Alumnæ program, if we do not bring it within some feasible working relation to our budget.

The Alumnæ Association, therefore, has decided that from now on its membership shall consist of two main groups—active and inactive. The Active members will be those who have paid dues at least once in five years. I don't have to say who the "Inactives" are. This new classification, of course, does not affect the status of "Honoraries."

Note, please, that this change in policy in no way alters the fact that any person who attended Hollins College is, and always will be, an Alumna of Hollins College. Moreover, if at any time she finds herself on the inactive list, she may, by paying her current dues, be transferred to the active list. Hollins is swiftly approaching the time when she will be accorded full recognition and thereupon take her place among the outstanding colleges of the country. Furthermore, there is such a vital program ahead—Scholarships and Loan Fund, Class Organization, Student Selection, Additional Chapter Organization, Increased Endowment and a number of other projects that you will want to have a part in, as an active member.

We are refinding values in these days of "hard times"—finding out what we used to do that no longer seems important, and what we used to spend our money for that does not satisfy. Therefore, it is our hope and belief that many of us have turned too frequently of late to that very standard of values that Hollins gave us, not to have become convinced that our Alumnæ Association is one of the valuable and satisfying things in our lives.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Great care has been exerted to have as few mistakes as possible in the lists of active and inactive Alumnæ. If any who have complied with the above stated conditions receive a "complimentary" copy, please notify the Alumnæ Office at once so that the correction may be made.

ALUMNÆ DAY

“ALL ASHORE that’s going ashore,” or perhaps the chairman of Alumnæ Day whooped a more grammatical whoop, as the S. S. Alumnæ set sail at 10:00 A. M., on May 28th, for an all-day and almost all-night cruise.

Captain Kitty Settle Morgan called her crew and passengers together in Presser ‘cabin’ and there the good ship, Alumnæ, exhibited its log, and we heard just how much and what kind of progress she had made during the past year. Another important phase of the captain’s meeting was to have us listen to plans for voyages in the immediate future and decide exactly where we wanted to go. Those interested in this log will find some notes from it on Page 4 of the April QUARTERLY.

At noon we made our first stop, and with the hearty singing of welcome songs, back and forth, we took on board the Class of '32, our new passengers. We ushered these “middies” immediately in to luncheon.

In the afternoon, some engaged in sports, swimming, tennis, or just strolling with friends of bygone days.

But along about five o’clock everybody was dressed up, all hands easily passing inspection, and called at the Commodore’s ‘cabin,’ Eastnor, where we enjoyed a charming party.

In the evening, Purser Mardi Fort, ‘took over.’ She conducted the ceremonies attending the banquet in honor of those passengers that we had so recently taken aboard.

To remind us that all ships have a home port, and that all voyagers should return now and then, the banquet program opened with the introduction of a new Alumnæ song called, Return. The poem was written by Frances Stoakley, '30, upon her own return to Hollins, the home port, last Founder’s Day. It was so beautiful that Virginia Egolf, '29, of the Music Faculty, set it to music. Katherine Wilson came aboard especially to sing it. It was all very beautiful, words, music and voice. A group from the choral club assisted, directed by Mr. Rath, and we were most happy to proclaim Return, words and music, as our Alumnæ Day hymn forevermore.

You who weren't with us can't imagine how "ship-shape" our ship was. The fact that a good deal of the atmosphere was attained by the use of a good many life preservers, didn't alarm us at all. There were such things as gang planks, passports, sailor hats, and the tables set in anchor shape had as a center decoration a ship model of the old days.

Mardi Fort continued her program as the last course was removed by picturing for us the glory of adventure when the inspiration to accomplish great things comes from such a source as Hollins. She told us how there were certain phases of life so clearly resembling a sea voyage, no matter if we sailed a chartered or on uncharted sea, and called then on Elizabeth Tinsley Campbell, to speak about our ship of state, the S. S. Alumnae. "Tinsley" welcomed our new shipmates, and in calling them "new," she said "new, and yet not new, for from the youngest tar to the most ancient mariner, we are all united by our common heritage that is Hollins—a heritage that grows sweeter with the passing years." And she told us then what our ship of state, the Alumnae Association, can mean to us—new friendships, and old ones strengthened. It can mean a stimulus to hold us to the ideal of high thinking. She urged us to let the activities of the Alumnae Association keep us out of the ruts of thinking too much about the office or the classroom, or "the strained spinach" or the servant problem, as our cases might be. "There is something else that the Alumnae Association can give us, something we all want, almost more than anything else—youth! . . . Hollins may develop gymns, Little Theatres, music halls, smoking rooms, even Proms in our absence, but she does not develop dimmed eyes or wrinkles or old hearts. There is always the same swagger to Mr. Turner's tie, the same sweetness to "Vanie" Rath's smile—and even the same flourish to Lewis' manner.

"The Alumnae Association in itself could provide you with that so to be desired thing we call 'a hobby.' Take Hollins as your hobby and I can guarantee that it will be a satisfying one." She pointed out the many activities of the Alumnae Association and assured us that there was a place in it for each of us.

In speaking of our responsibilities as Alumnae of Hollins College, and the places that we must take in our communities, she closed her address by saying, ". . . but as Hollins Alumnae, I think we have something even finer than leadership to give—we have this heritage of Hollins. It means that for four years we were enriched by the beauty of this valley, and the glory of our Hollins hills; that we could view the world from the top of Tinker, and adjust our standards of values. It means that we lived in an atmosphere where spiritual progress is placed high above material gain, and where what one is counts for more than what one has; that we have seen the burning allegiance to an ideal overcome tremendous difficulties, and have known faith not as an abstract quality but as a living force, in the lives of the family we all love and honor.

"It means that we have been shown the beauty of living simply and without pretence, that we have been taught to seek after truth and that we have been led to lift up our eyes. This is our heritage and we must share it—for that is a part of its beauty. It is the dream of a dreamer and cannot be lost in the night."

Mardi expressed everyone's appreciation of "Tinsley's" talk and we turned with eagerness to Agnes Sanders, who, Mardi announced, would tell us of the "Home Harbor."

Realization that ours is a college "too alive and too fine to be bound by the experiences of any college generation" and that upon leaving it we "feared that we were to have no part in its future, these two facts make Hollins safe in the hands of any generation," she said.

And then Agnes went on to pay homage to the eternal youthfulness of Hollins and the eternal youth of Hollins.

"Did I say that Hollins is safe? I should never have used the word safe, for safety as we are so often told, is not for youth and it is to the eternal youth of Hollins that I would pay homage to-night. Hollins is young, not in years, but in ideals, in enthusiasm and in courage. One of the first characteristics of youth is growth. As you have seen, Hollins has already acquired much that is new. As the next years come there will be room in her life for new customs, new interests and new ways of thinking. Would you have her fail to keep march with the times?"

"But if growth is to mean development and not merely change, then there must be some fixed ideals by which Hollins lives. Although there are many of these we will mention only two. First, Hollins is always to be a liberal arts college. Steady adherence to this course is no easy task in a world which constantly cries: 'What can I do with this; what is the use of that?' But certainly the most recent trends in the better colleges point to a more liberal and less specialized type of undergraduate training. Even that stronghold of specialization, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is emphasizing the importance of a liberal education. That such an education is the best preparation for the living of a life has never been seriously doubted. Then, Hollins must continue to develop along the lines of her own unique qualities. Imitation is the cheapest and most artificial type of growth. Every college has its own characteristic and its own possibilities. Let us make the most of those of our college! High academic standards, cordial faculty-student relations, a workable honor system, a prize magazine, a splendid school of music, a dramatic department unusual in southern colleges and I might go on and on—these are the heritage of Hollins. Let her continue to grow along such lines.

"My favorite definition of youth is: They shall not be afraid of that which is high and hard. Hollins, with other colleges of her kind, will feel the effects of the present economic conditions. But if she meets this true to her own high standards and if we, as Alumnæ accept the challenge so forcefully presented by Dr. Marion Smith this morning, then we can trust that such a crisis will bring greater intellectual vigor renewed spiritual sensitivity, and more human understanding.

"One of the characteristic qualities of the central stillness of Hollins which remains unchanged is her abiding interest in her Alumnæ, and the respect which she pays alumnæ opinion. When an 'old girl' returns she is welcomed with sincere affection, and it is a mark of the strength of the college that so many girls do return. Hollins follows with eager interest the life of each of her alumnæ and perhaps never feels more justified for her existence than when she hears that this girl and that is achieving something comparable with her possibilities. May we always regard her life and her growth with such a spirit!

"We must then think of Hollins as never finished, her growth was not completed in my college years, nor in yours, nor ever during the life period of our honor guests, eventful as have been the four years which this senior class has seen. Hollins is young, alive and still in the process of creation; and she summons each of us to take an active part in her future, wherever we are. If we will heed this summons, then we may echo with confidence those beautiful words of Frances Stoakley:

*'O, well—remembered beauty, heal anew
Whatever exiles may come home to you.'*"

The Toastmistress then introduced Catherine Witschen, President of the Class of '32 who expressed the thanks of the Class to the Alumnæ Association for the banquet in their honor. In her talk entitled "Anchors Aweigh," she pledged the allegiance of her classmates to Alumnae projects and to the ideals of Hollins College. Her sincerity led everyone to feel a great confidence in the whole group of newer Alumnae, who seem to see so clearly those things which must continue to live at Hollins, and those things which must be a part of the attitude of every Alumna if the Hollins of our cherished dreams is to be developed and maintained.

And emphasizing the high qualities of leadership found in these new Alumnae, Mardi, in her closing words, "Hollins—The Pilot," brought us all back to the source which each one has tapped and from whence came whatever of wisdom, patience, understanding, perseverance and courage that we are able to bring to bear in our own lives, and the lives and events about us.

She recalled under what difficulties the first great mariners sailed the seas—and yet made history. She described what comparative ease navigation enjoyed to-day, bringing with it, however, a far greater responsibility to the master of the ship for the safety of the voyage, just as we, with our greater privileges in preparing for life, ought to be more culpable in our negligences than were our forefathers.

She told of the things at Hollins that live with her every day, and that still guide when difficulties arise—music, beauty of the out-of-doors, friendships among both contemporaries and those who were her professors. When she had finished, not one of us, from 1932 on back but knew wherein Hollins had 'piloted' us.

We sang The Green and The Gold and went directly to the Little Theatre where the play, Lillies of The Field, by John H. Turner was presented by the Dramatic Association.

There was Senior singing on the Library steps after the play, just as our good ship, Alumnae, finished its tour of the past, the present and the future of Hollins life. We put into port, guided by the stars in the Hollins sky.

Notes from the Minutes of the Annual Meeting of the Alumnae Association

PRESIDENT KITTY SETTLE MORGAN CALLED THE MEETING TO ORDER
AT 10:00 A. M., MAY 28, PRESSER HALL

THE Association accepted the report of Dr. Orlie Pell, Faculty Representative to the Alumnae Advisory Council and Chairman of the Primer Committee, from that body. The committee plans to have the Primer ready for use by Chapters and Alumnae not in chapter centers when their Fall programs are set up. The Primer will be a valuable adjunct to the work in the field of Student Selection and also that of raising and administering local Scholarship and Student Loan Funds.

Dr. E. Marion Smith, Faculty Representative to the Alumnae Advisory Council and chairman of its committee on Scholarships and Loan Funds, was heard and accepted. The President instructed that it be published in full since it is to form the basis of Alumnae work in the future. The report follows:

MADAM CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION:

When the Alumnae Council met at Founder's Day, one of the things especially stressed was that for the time being a different objective be given to endowment activity and that instead of raising money for endowment, the Alumnae should attempt to raise money for scholarships. At the time there was a discussion of chapters, or groups of chapters, situated near one another, interesting themselves in maintaining scholarships to be held by students from their own local communities. There was decided emphasis on the fact that such students should be selected on the basis of scholarship. To further the work of establishing scholarships for the future Hollins, Mrs. Henry Lane Schmelz, Chairman of the Council, appointed the following committee to devise ways and means of obtaining the money and of administering the funds once, they were obtained: Dr. Marion Smith, Chairman, Mrs. McConkey and Miss Dorothy Towles, of Roanoke, Miss Josephine Hancox, of Norfolk, and Mrs. Joseph Speed, of Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

This committee wishes to present the following recommendations to the Alumnae:

1. That every possible encouragement be given to the separate chapters to support each its own scholarship fund. It seems advisable that such a scholarship fund should be used to defray the expenses of a student chosen by each chapter from its own locality and that the same girl be helped, if possible, throughout her college course if she proves herself worthy academically, of such help. (This stipulation is made on the basis of material gathered from the experience of regional groups in other colleges to the effect that the members of the group take added interest in a girl as they watch her grow and develop over a period of time, as they could not possibly do if a different girl were helped each year.) The committee suggests that such a scholarship be administered by a committee chosen from the group offering the scholarship, upon consultation with the committee on admissions at the college. The student desiring the scholarship should apply directly to the proper representative of the local Alumnae group. (This, of course, implies that the local group has taken precautions early in the school year to advertise their readiness to help a student, to the heads of good preparatory schools and to the principals of the better public high schools in their own locality.) The applicant's recommendations, together with her high school credits, etc., should be forwarded to the committee on admissions at the College which will pass judgment on her fitness academically to enter Hollins and in turn will notify the chairman of the local committee on scholarships, who will then be able either to accept or reject the candidate for the scholarship.

NOTE: The committee has learned with pleasure, through the Alumnae Office, that the New York chapter has, this spring, raised a chapter scholarship and that they stand ready to help some student who will enter Hollins in the fall. The Richmond chapter, too, has a scholarship fund in hand, and the Ella Kirven Cocke chapter reports that it will have about $100 to offer on a scholarship in September.

2. That the Alumnae be asked to help support two other projects, 1. A general scholarship fund, which shall be kept by the Alumnae Treasurer and shall be administered by the Alumnae Office in consultation with the Faculty Committee on Scholarships and Awards. Eventually there should be established here a foundation, the interest of which can be devoted to such a purpose. The scholarships created in this fashion should be designed to go to rising Juniors and Seniors primarily who have had a fair portion of their college course, but who find themselves unable to continue further on account of financial difficulties at home. Applications for such help should be made by the student to the Alumnae Secretary stating her need. Scholarship shall be a prime factor in making the award.

2. A student loan fund, which shall be kept by the Alumnae Treasurer. This shall be designed to help students who are in need by lending them at a moderate rate of interest such money as shall solve their difficulties. During her college course a student may borrow $500 at two per cent. interest, or, if her needs warrant it, an additional $500 at three per cent. Application for loans should be made by the student to the Alumnae Secretary. The committee recommends that the entire amount borrowed be repaid within five years after the student has left college and that the interest be paid annually and the principal be reduced as often as possible in order that others may benefit by the loan fund.

I will say here that this loan fund is not now as visionary as it sounds, as I have in my possession a check for $500 which was sent me a few days ago by a friend of the College to form the nucleus of such a fund.

The committee has devised two ways whereby the Alumnae may be asked to contribute to the carrying out of these two projects. It advises that each one take her choice and that she specify in each instance whether she prefers that her contribution go to the scholarship fund or to the loan fund.

The methods of contribution are these:

1. The alumna may contribute to one of these funds a minimum of $5.00.

2. The alumna may contribute to one of these funds $1.00 for each year since she has left Hollins and continue to contribute $1.00 in each succeeding year.

The committee hopes that contribution to one of these funds might come to be an annual thing by every one of the alumnae and there might be created at Hollins a living endowment or a President's Fund such as are at present so common in the large women's colleges.

There is one thing more. The times demand speedy action on your part. This year, as at no other time in recent years, those of us who are engaged in academic work are confronted with the problem of the number of girls who must give up college because of financial difficulties at home. Here at Hollins we have a long list of students this spring who are asking for help—and many of them are our better students and on their return in a sense depends the future of Hollins. We all realize the extreme generosity of the administration in the past in helping worthy students return to Hollins. This year what they can offer is not enough.

There are three prime factors in any well set up institution of learning—the students, the faculty, and the Alumnae. One has only to look about the campus at the Little Theatre, the Gymnasium, etc.

and see what the loyalty of past generations of students has been. This year with the same generous impulses they are turning over to Mr. Cocke the sum of approximately $500 to be used for scholarships. The faculty is, for our purposes here, perhaps the weakest of these three groups because our filial devotions and obligations in large part lie with other colleges; yet acting upon the suggestion of the committee which I represent here, it has during the past week given $500 which will be used as a memorial to the late Professor Charles N. Dickinson to help a Senior or a Junior who could not otherwise return to college next fall. Lastly, there are you, the Alumnae. You should be the most important and the strongest because you are the most numerous and the most enduring. Virtually, the College is yours. So, too, should be its problems. We are not doing anything unique in asking you for a contribution at this time. We are simply in line with some of the larger and far richer institutions—Columbia—Radcliffe. Already rather than see more of these better students unable to come back to us, I have suggested that they file applications with Mrs. Reeves in the hope that your response will be rapid and of some avail by fall. We have faith to believe that it will. We have purposely been conservative in the amount for which we are asking each one of you. There are 4,400 names on the mailing list in the Alumnae Office. I leave you to figure what a whole-hearted, one hundred per cent., five dollar per alumna response would mean to the administration in this crisis.

Respectfully submitted,

E. MARION SMITH,

Chairman of the Alumnae Council Committee on Scholarships and Loan Fund.

The report of the Committee on Constitutional Amendments was accepted. The most far-reaching change is that of having the officers and committees take up their duties on January 1, instead of immediately after the Annual Meeting. Note therefore that those now in office are to continue with their duties until January, 1933.

Catherine Witschen, president of the Class of 1932, and Janet Stirling, class representative, spoke on a subject of concern to all Alumnae. Kit Witschen pledged the active support of '32 to alumnae development and asked her class representative to tell of the class project. Janet Stirling reported as follows:

The Class of 1932 has chosen as its Alumnae project one that will include all members of the Alumnae Association. We shall be back for our tenth reunion in 1942, when Hollins will celebrate her One Hundredth Anniversary. To commemorate this occasion, we feel that a birthday present is justly in order. However, 1932, will be but a small portion of those who will want to have a share in this gift, and we therefore offer our plan of a gift Fund to everyone interested in Hollins. Not only those who are already Alumnae, but those who will be leaving Hollins in the next ten years will also have a share in contributing. In order to make the gift representative of every Hollins girl we suggest that the gifts be first from individuals rather than from the various chapters, although the chapters, too, will doubtless want to contribute as groups. Furthermore, the Fund is starting now, not five or eight years hence. Several members of 1932 have already started saving pennies. Others are going to give a certain amount for every year since they have left Hollins, while others will add up their birthdays for the next ten years. Choose any plan you may know of, but start it now, and keep it growing. From time to time reports will be made of the progress of the Fund, which, it is hoped, will truly represent every Hollins daughter. In addition, we are sure that Hollins loyalty extends beyond her own children, and therefore, patrons, faculty and friends are welcome to share with 1932 and all other Alumnae in making this birthday gift to Hollins.

The committee in charge of this project includes Catherine Witschen, president of the Class of 1932, Kitty Settle Morgan, president of the Alumnae Association, Ruth Crupper Reeves, executive secretary, Annie Moomaw Schmelz, president of the Alumnae Council, an Alumna-at-large, and Janet Stirling, Alumnae Representative of the Class of 1932. The personnel of this committee will change as these offices change hands, with the exception of the last two, the Alumna-at-large and the class representative.

Checks should be sent to Lucy Robinson, treasurer of the Class of 1932, Blackstone, Virginia, who will remain treasurer of the Centennial Fund.

1932 is directing its well-known enthusiasm towards the successful completion of this Fund, and we sincerely hope that our interest will be caught by you all in a most contagious manner.

Report of Alumnae Executive Secretary

MADAM CHAIRMAN AND ALUMNÆ: Since our time is limited this morning, I believe that it will meet with your approval if, instead of giving a detailed report of the activities of the Alumnae Office such as I presented to the Board of Directors at their meeting last evening, I briefly call your attention to some of the more important phases of the Alumnae Association's program.

You have listened this morning to the splendid report made by Dr. E. Marion Smith, of the work already accomplished by her Committee on Scholarships and Student Loan Funds. It would be difficult to place too much emphasis on that valuable and interesting activity. Moreover if we fail to take up this project with zeal and intelligence we shall have missed an unusual opportunity for service both to young women who desire and need a college degree, and to our college which is strengthened and benefited by this sincere type of student. I commend to you, therefore, individual Alumnae as well as chapter leaders, Dr. Smith's report, for serious and purposeful study.

Moving from the consideration of Scholarships and Student Loan Funds we shall discuss the matter of Student Selection, including such points of technique as are involved in Dr. Orlie Pell's report on the publication of a Primer. Detailed correspondence between the Alumnae Office and Alumnae Chapters, as well as individual Alumnae engaged in this work has resulted in repetition of effort on both sides at the same time leaving us convinced that the work is hampered by Alumnae not having in their possession accurate and up-to-date information concerning their college. Therefore the early publication of The College Primer seems distinctly indicated. This booklet will contain in brief compact form, all information necessary when interviewing a prospective student. Student Selection, in theory, is no new activity for Alumnae of Hollins, but with the day of strict adherence to standards of admission, entrance requirements, etc., it has become evident that if we are to assist in the selection of students, we must do so in under an organized plan. I am glad to report that the majority of chapters and a good many Alumnae have evinced a keen interest in this work.

Closely allied with the Student Selection program is that of publicity. A word or two will dispose of this matter. By publicity I do not refer only to what may appear in the press. I believe that each Alumna should consider herself an active representative for her college in her community. On the other hand, referring to the press, you will find that the desirable kind of write-up of either some event at the college itself or of some activity among Alumnae of your several communities will greatly strengthen your organization and give impetus to your work. After all the woman's college of to-day figures conspicuously in the life of the nation and therefore its activities and development contain news for the general public.

You will be interested to know that our first Campus Chapter has been organized. It is the Campus Chapter of the Northern Ohio Chapter. Its leader is Mildred Raynold, '34. In campus chapters are gathered all students on campus who live, in the vicinity of an established Alumnae chapter. To the campus group this is known as the "Home Chapter." Through its leader the home chapter is kept informed of campus events, especially when members of their campus chapter have been prominent participants. Such items of news value are sent to the press by the home chapter.

The home chapter entertains the campus chapter at vacation times and invites its members to attend any meetings that occur when they should happen to be at home. "Northern Ohio" is enjoying the contact with its campus group. This expansion of chapter interest has a number of extremely valuable aspects you will perceive. I hope that the idea has a strong appeal to all chapter leaders.

I shall refer only briefly to Class Organization. However in doing so I want to fix several facts in your thoughts if I can. The first is that Alumnae organizations far more experienced than ours, do not hesitate to lay their chief emphasis on this phase of the organization plan as a whole. The second is that against this fact, save in a few recent instances, we cannot boast of a single organized class that is functioning as such. The last fact that I would lay stress upon is that if and when successful class organization becomes the concern of every graduate of Hollins, we shall have enormously strengthened and immeasurably heightened the power of our whole Alumnae program. In 1931, Betty Trenbath (Mrs. Irving Fitzpatrick 931 Front Street, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania), made a practical, workable plan for class organization. She is now chairman of this work appointed jointly by the Alumnae Advisory Council and the Alumnae Association. I cannot urge upon you too strongly to respond to her requests promptly and with purpose. We all know the value of breaking up the larger unit into smaller units all intent upon the same project. A full presentation of this plan is to be made to-day by Janet Stirling, Class Representative of the Class of '32.

May I recall to you the fact that in the QUARTERLY for April there appeared in the report of the Alumnae Advisory Council, a discussion of the proposal made by the Alumnae Board of Directors then in session, namely, to establish Alumnae membership into two groups, i. e., active and inactive. The Council readily concurred, indeed urged that this be done. The Board of Directors is, therefore, recommending this action to you to-day. When the matter comes up for discussion the very practical and valid reasons for this step will certainly become clear to everyone. As executive in the Alumnae Office endeavoring to carry out the plans and project put into my hands by you and your Board, I most earnestly endorse it. The result will mean a more compact organization. This, in turn, will make possible a higher type of service from the Alumnae Office to chapters, classes and individual Alumnae not in chapter centers who are interested in taking part in the Alumnae program for the ultimate welfare of their college.

The routine work of the office I shall leave to your imagination. It is interesting and stimulating. Alumnae response is becoming more general. The payment of dues is showing slight gains. Having lost one chapter, we boast two new ones with several other groups corresponding with organization in view. The matter of finishing our Endowment project continues to be an important part of the Alumnae program and no opportunities are overlooked which might bring results at this point. Publishing the QUARTERLY, keeping the files as nearly correct as possible, hunting up "lost" Alumnae, sending our notifications of all kinds, the receiving and filing of dues, getting news ready for the reporters, planning for contacts with students, especially of course, Seniors—all of these things make busy days often, however, most happily colored by visits of Alumnae from near and far. I believe you will be interested to know that since January, 1932, we have had visits from more than two hundred Alumnae.

In closing I would remind you that this very promising but still incomplete organization is the outgrowth of the loyal, diligent and resourceful work of Alumnae leaders. Materials and money have ever been a scarcity. Their work is bringing results nevertheless. I believe that the activity which is making itself felt now will gather strength as it goes on. It is the duty of this group and the Alumnae Office to offer a program that in its very usefulness challenges and holds you, as college women.

Respectfully submitted,

RUTH C. REEVES.

NINETIETH COMMENCEMENT

TWO DISTINGUISHED GUEST-SPEAKERS MARKED THE FOUR-DAY COMMENCEMENT PERIOD

ON Sunday night the Rev. F. Crossley Morgan, D. D., of Augusta, Georgia, addressed the Senior Class, and a large audience of visitors, in Bradley Chapel. As the Baccalaureate speaker, he chose as his subject a dramatic episode in the ministry of Christ that dealt with youth. He vividly reconstructed the scene wherein the rich young man came to Christ asking how he might be saved, or, as Dr. Morgan interpreted it, how he could find that something which he knew he lacked, in order to feel some inner sense of satisfaction in the living of life. Dr. Morgan's actual text was the direct but comprehensive answer which Christ gave the youth, "Follow Me."

Dr. Morgan paid a high tribute of praise to the Hollins Choir, "whose beautiful music found a place in his message," he said.

On Tuesday morning, Commencement Day, Dr. Christian Gauss, Dean of Princeton University, gave the address. Dean Gauss began his talk by quoting from the Hollins Catalogue, a copy of which he held in his hand. This was his quotation:

Spending Money—The cultivation of the habit of wise, and not unnecessary, expenditure of money is an important part of the training of the student while in college. Parents are, therefore, requested to give their daughters a moderate allowance for spending money, and require them to keep within this allowance."

The speaker did not agree with those commencement speakers who assume an attitude of pity toward the young men and women graduating from colleges this year. He did not overlook the fact that they were facing unusual obstacles, but he called attention to the fact that there is another side to the situation. He traced two trends in American life over a period of perhaps fifty years. The first was the march of youth in huge numbers to colleges. He said that since 1873 the college-going group had increased from some 23,000 until to-day, it had reached over a million. The second trend bearing directly on his conclusions, is, he said, the steady and consistent reduction in the hours of labor required in order that even ample output in all lines, manufactures, farm, home, etc., should be met. The drop in required labor in the same period referred to above, has been sharp, that is, from a twelve-hour day and a six-day week, even before the unemployment crisis of to-day, to an eight-hour day and in many cases, a five-day week. Dean Gauss feels that we are just on the eve of enjoying the benefits of scientific discovery and technological invention.

"We are really at the edge of an age of great promise if we but knew it," the speaker concluded. "Our depression, so-called, is not psychological. It is really almost exclusively financial. There is no longer any need why anyone in this country should go without food or clothing. We have only too many of what used to be known as the necessities of life. Our trouble is that we are not satisfied with these necessities of life. We have all wanted immense fortune in money as well." In spite of the stress through which we have been passing, Dean Gauss believed it was truer now than ever before that, in Matthew Arnold's phrase, 'the future lies before us like a land of dreams.'

Degrees were then conferred upon the fifty members of the Class of 1932, by President Matty L. Cocke.

The Jane Cocke Funkhouser award was presented to Leonora Alexander, '32, of Charleston, West Virginia. Miss Sitler, Professor of Zoölogy and Hygiene made the presentation.

ADDRESS TO THE CLASS OF 1932

By DEAN M. ESTES COCKE

YOUNG LADIES OF THE GRADUATING CLASS:

A few months ago, in talking with Dean Gauss, I expressed my appreciation and enjoyment of his recent book entitled, Life in College. "I am glad you enjoyed it," he said. "I got a good deal of fun out of writing it." If you have read the book, you will understand the enjoyment he had in reviewing his experiences and contacts with college students. With delicate humor and sympathetic understanding, he portrays the many sidedness of student life. While recognizing their limitations, as well as those of their parents to whom he also pays his respects, he commends "the frankness, honesty, generosity and sportsmanship," usually found in all his dealings with Princeton students. This tribute we would gladly pay to the students of Hollins.

Someone has remarked that, "one always becomes famous in college outside the classroom, never in it." "Campus opinion," it is alleged, "is distinctly to learning." Undoubtedly there is much that goes on in our colleges to-day that lends support to such an opinion. Student attitude toward the curriculum is often distressingly unacademic. However, in most of the colleges, and I am sure it is true at Hollins, there is underneath these surface indications, a positive and clear recognition of the primary and fundamental significance of the scholastic work of the student and of the part it plays in her development. This, in theory at least, occupies the largest part of our time and is the real justification for the expensive organization and equipment of the college.

Those of us who are older know only too well that a large part, if not most, of the facts we learn in college are forgotten. Our present credit system does not, I fear, encourage us to remember them. But after all, it is not the knowledge itself so much as the desire for and means of acquiring knowledge that is important. Colleges express their purposes and objectives in many ways, and differ as to the means to be employed in attaining them. I presume, however, that in a broad way at least, the chief function of college is to teach people to think. This involves the ability to take hold of a problem and see it through, and recognize for success such qualities as a desire to know, the will to achieve, an open mind, a critical attitude, a sense of values and a driving enthusiasm to learn and enjoy the best that life affords.

It is our hope that these few years in college have at least enabled you to make a good beginning in the development of these qualities and this power. Obviously, the ground gained will be of value only as you shall apply yourself to the solution of the many problems which life presents, day by day.

Surely there has never been a time when intelligence and serious thinking were so sorely needed. It is not sufficient, in this complex age in which we live, to want to do what is right. The obligation rests on all, and with special force on the college graduate, as far as possible to think through the many questions that arise to correct conclusions. This obligation and responsibility I am sure you recognize. The call to you is not to a life of ease. Thinking is hard work, but the rewards it brings are most enduring and satisfying.

As your song goes, you will soon go "back to civilization," "out into the cold, cold world." I hope you will carry with you the realization that education is not a matter of a few college years but is a process that continues through life. Each advance is but a stepping stone to still greater endeavor. It is never information which transforms a person, but the persistent effort put forth to acquire it. May you have the courage and patience to persist in the process through life, and may you have lots of fun on the way.

THE MEMOIRS OF '32

By CATHERINE WITSCHEN, PRESIDENT

THE cold, cold world has me so firmly in its clutches that I was beginning to think that Hollinsland had all been a dream. All of the time, however, I knew that no mere dream could mean so much to me. Frankly, I am one puzzled graduate—I spend my days living over memories, liking my present life, but having a definite feeling of missing something that I used to feel I belonged to. I wonder if other '32's scattered over eighteen states and the District of Columbia have had that feeling? If they have, I believe that they will join me for a few moments to go back over "the old days" in memory.

It seems to me that our chief characteristic as Freshmen was that we were a little too bold for our age, for as Freshmen we won the hockey championship. It seems to me, too, that we tied for the swimming championship and perhaps did very well in other sports.

Of deep significance to the class itself was the abolishing of sororities, a concerted student action during our freshman year. It was hard to see the glory of fraternity life, for the glory was all that we Freshmen could know, just slip away. But Hollins came to mean a great deal more to us than personal happiness.

CATHERINE WITSCHEN
President
of the Class of '32

As Sophomores we were awfully proud of our country court held at the close of Senior Deference week. We worked hard, making it a stunt. I remember I had to hold a rooster throughout the whole performance and that was a trial! Tim smoked a cigar, much to the horror of the audience, while Julia and Vic kept the audience roaring as they interpreted a country mother and child waving at the judge. But this isn't strictly class history.

At Christmas, the Sophomore's had a banquet at the hotel in Roanoke. It was the first time a class had been given that privilege.

In February we presented a show called Sophomore Follies. All the stunts, songs and dances were original. The returns went to Endowment.

We had a war one Saturday night in Main. It was rather childish but we adored it—just some of '32's abundant enthusiasm!

When we found ourselves to be Juniors we attempted to gain a little seriousness. We returned to school that fall with the feeling that we had to "bring up our little sisters in the way they should go!" We serenaded the Freshmen the first Sunday night of the session, which act bids fair to become a custom.

On St. Valentine's Day we confronted the campus with a tag day pleading: "Have a Heart for the Endowment!" It was in our junior year that the student body acted on our suggestion that the audience rise when the Seniors marched into chapel on Sunday nights. This, too, has been continued.

Betty Milton, a member of our class died during the summer of 1930, and in her memory a fund was started for the purpose of leaving something at Hollins as a memorial for Betty. When '32 finished this year we gave to the Board room of the Dramatic Association, a secretary. You will recall that Betty's chief interest was in dramatics.

Seniors! We began the year by liking to display our caps and gowns, and by making an awful fuss over ourselves at the senior tables.

Do you remember our Hallowe'en stunt? We presented a darkey's interpretation of Shakespeare giving several famous scenes in black face style before a gathering of dark brothers all set for a Shakespeare convention. The enthusiastic reception that our audience gave us, made us consider it a success.

In the spring time Miss Sanders' party looms as one of the happiest memories. Since "Vannie" Rath was sponsor for our Sister Class the party was held at Rathaus. We remember with so much pleasure, too, the tea party that Triangle Chapter gave us in Roanoke. We continued the plan inaugurated by '31, at holding Senior Forums, our program including four during the year.

We opened Senior singing on the Library steps, to the entire student body. Will we ever forget the "sing" on Founders' Day night? We braved the rain and snow, but the inspiration was all the greater.

'32 made an enviable reputation for itself as clever entertainers. The scene for the freshman party was "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," stunts, costumes and all. We even acted out the eclipse! Our sophomore party represented the Mardi Gras with confetti, flowers, fruit and a real coffee shop (New Orleans style), with black mammy waitresses serving coffee and buns. Our junior party was a deep sea venture! We were able to get boxes of sea shells and spanish moss to create an effect. Mermaids, Barnacle Bill, Davy Jones, Jonah and other famous sea folk entertained us, I remember.

We shall look forward to visiting the cabin when we return for '32 saw the completion of that Fund.

And so we find ourselves, having retraced our steps in memories, in commencement days.

At Alumnae meeting Janet and I reported for '32 that we, '32's, were taking as our class project, the launching of a centennial fund to be supported by all Alumnae. This fund will be a birthday gift to Hollins on its One Hundredth Anniversary in 1942. It seemed fitting that 1932 should sponsor this movement. In it we have the full support of the Alumnae Association. We also adopted the Class Organization plan created by the Class of '31. Through that plan we know, that come what may, we shall always be together and always '32.

Forgive me if I have used too much space. Just mention '32 to me and I never know when to stop. The class was such a vital and cherished part of my life for such a long time, that I'm afraid I am going to be very lonesome without it.

THE DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY

By MARTHA HIGH, A. B., '32, Chemistry Major

OUR Alumnae, and especially former chemistry students, will probably be interested in knowing something concerning our Chemistry Department and its recent activities. For the last several years the department has had a comparatively large number of students taking advanced courses. For the term '31-'32 there were nine advanced students. The Chemistry I Class was a large and unusually interested one. At the end of the term a goodly number of these had signed up to do advanced work the next semester. The Curie Chemical Society held its regular meetings in the form of round-table discussions of scientific current events. These meetings developed among the students a surprisingly close comradeship.

Miss Harriett H. Fillinger's efforts, as head of the Department since 1921, have largely been responsible for the growth and strength of the Chemistry Department. A portion of the following article in the June Bulletin published by the Virginia Section of the American Chemical Society, says of her, "Miss Fillinger, who has been referred to as the Dean of Women Chemists in Virginia, was born and reared in Bristol, Virginia; graduated at Sullins College 1910; Woman's College of Alabama 1911; S. B. University of Chicago 1920, M. S. 1921; Head of Science Department, Sullins College, and later of Mississippi Synodical College prior to 1918; graduate scholarship, U. C. 1921; graduate work and assistant in Graduate Courses, U. C., summers, since 1921; Lecturer General Chemistry, Syracuse University, summer 1927; Professor of Chemistry and Head of Department, Hollins College, since 1921; member of Sigma Xi, Kappa Mu Sigma, A. C. S., A. A. A. Secretary, Virginia Academy Science, and Methodist Church; Ex-ch. Southwest Virginia Chemists Club; Chairman Committee on Junior Memberships Virginia Academy Science, author four papers, Journal Chemistry Education; author several papers read before divisional meetings of A. C. S. and Virginia Academy Science; author of Laboratory Manual, Experiments in General Chemistry for Colleges.

"On entering Miss Fillinger's laboratory, one quickly senses the fact that a teacher of extraordinary ability and compelling personality works there. Orderliness is in evidence everywhere, and one sees many effective pedagogical methods being applied. A "Living Periodic Chart of the Elements," as she calls it, attracts attention as one enters. Samples of work of students and classes are on exhibit. Pictures of great Chemists, with that of Madame Curie prominently placed, adorn the walls. Source books of information are within reach in the laboratory. A victrola with scientific records, a spectroscope, and the real spectra of numerous gases are ready for use with the turn of a switch. And inspiring quotations occupy the corners of blackboards and convenient spaces on the walls, new ones replacing the old at frequent intervals throughout the year."

Hollins was privileged this spring in having the Virginia Academy of Science hold its tenth annual meeting at the college. According to a résumé of the meeting in The Bulletin, for May, some said that this meeting had the largest attendance of any Academy meeting and that this was due in part to the attractive meeting place. The Chemistry Department received many compliments and praises from the visitors. Many were especially impressed with the well-equipped laboratories.

The Department presented two papers before the meeting of the Academy of Science. These papers were:

A 'Living' Periodic Chart of the Elements by Harriett H. Fillinger, Agnes Graham Sanders and Margaret P. Keller.

A Preliminary Study of Some of the Factors Affecting the Precipitation of Lead Iodide in Silicic Acid Gel, by Harriett H. Fillinger, Katherine Dilworth, Martha High and Esther Shoup.

The "living periodic chart of the elements," attracted all visiting chemists and seemed to be one of the most interesting features of the chemical program. The Bulletin of the Virginia Section of the American Chemical Society, for May, says, "Miss Fillinger and her colleagues have developed a splendid educational display which they will find duplicated in other schools as rapidly as the latter can equal the originators in skill, patience and capital."

Miss Fillinger has received requests for a description of the chart by people who have heard of it and want to duplicate it for their departments. Mr. C. C. Clarke, of the New York University Chemistry Department has asked for a detailed description.

In a recent number of the Journal of Chemical Education, a publication of the American Chemical Society, there was published a description and picture of the Periodic Chart Cabinet. Sections of this article will best describe this "Periodic Chart Display Cabinet" which is a reproduction of a revised Mendeljeff chart of the elements.

"By outside measurements the cabinet is 165 centimeters by 200 centimeters with a depth of 10.5 centimeters. A copy of the periodic chart was painted in black by a local sign painter on a white enameled back prepared by the cabinet maker before the cabinet was built onto it. Plate-glass shelves mark the horizontal lines between the series of elements and a sliding plate-glass door protects the materials of the cabinet. The framework of the cabinet is wood with mahogany finish.

The section allotted to each element is sufficiently large to permit the setting

Samples of solutions of salts of the elements in which the elements occur alone in either the positive or negative radical of the compound set in fourth-ounce, glass-stoppered bottles beside the bottle containing the element."

"... One of the special features of the display is the arrangement of the samples of five of the rare gases of the earth's atmosphere, or the Zero Group of elements. These gases are in partially evacuated tubes made by a local neon sign company spelling the symbol of each of these elements and are electrically connected so that the colors produced by an electric discharge through the tubes may be seen..."

Individual students, The Curie Chemical Society, Chemistry I classes, and friends, have contributed some of the elements to the cabinet. Among these contributions are:

1. Sixty-Five dollars contributed by Curie Chemical Society '30-'31, Chemical students of '31-'32, and Chemistry Faculty.
2. Radium tubes contributed by student.
3. Diamond (one form of carbon) contributed by student.
4. Klondike gold nugget (from actual gold rush) given by patron.
5. Barium (some of the first pure free Barium ever isolated) given by Dr. R. A. Baker, of City College, New York, who first did that work at Syracuse in 1926.
6. Columbium and Zirconium given by faculty members.
7. Rhodium contributed by an alumna.
8. Germanium given by Chemistry I students 1930-31.
9. Samples of ten salts of the Rare Earth elements contributed by Dr. John H. Yoe, of the University of Virginia.
10. Blank radium tubes, rhenium, and a framed picture of Mendeljeff contributed by an alumna.

SOME OTHER GIFTS

THE Zoölogy Department has become the recipient of a handsome gift from all its students this year, in the form of a colored lithograph, dated 1858, which was printed in that year by J. Bien, of New York, from an original drawing by John James Audubon, the great Ornithologist and bird delineator.

The Audubon prints are getting ever rarer and more expensive, so that the department may well be congratulated on having secured what is considered by many to be the most famous of all the Audubon plates, the Meleagris Gallopava or North American Wild Turkey.

This regal creature has been hung in the Zoölogy I laboratory, where it invites the observation and admiration of the campus.

The newly acquired Audubon print, is the sixth of a series of substantial gifts that Zoölogy students have given to the department. Mrs. Marie Hedges Duffie contributed a collection of insects from India, the Journal Club of 1925-26, the Darwin portrait, the Zoölogy I Class of 1926-27, the Mendel and Audubon portraits, and a small group of Richmond girls, the fine specimen of the rare and rapidly-vanishing archaic species of reptile—the Sphenodon, of New Zealand. There have also been received a number of smaller gifts, including the framing of some Ornithological prints by the first Bird Study Class two years ago.

All of these gifts serve to recall to us, who "live with them" constantly the generous loyalty of our students long after these students have left us.

The Zoölogy Department and the College take this opportunity to thank you again for our "Turkey Bird."

In response to a request appearing in a recent issue of the QUARTERLY Mrs. A. W. Read (Samuella Owen), an alumna of Hollins since 1869, gave to the Charles L. Cocke Memorial Library, the following valuable copies (first editions), of the books of Mary Johnston; Prisoners of Hope, To Have and to Hold and Cease Firing.

Students, alumnae, faculty and administration all join in expressing their appreciation of this valuable gift.

Dorothy Dix (Mrs. Elizabeth Meriweather Gilmer), '79, has sent to the Hollins Library, upon request, one of her original manuscripts as prepared for the daily press. She also added to our Alumnae authors' shelf, a copy of her book entitled "Dorothy Dix—Her Book" and thus inscribed the fly leaf "For my Alma Mater in whose home I started my writing career by winning the composition medal in 1879. At that time I was the youngest girl to have ever had the honor bestowed upon her. (Signed) Elizabeth Meriweather Gilmer."

ON HOLLINS CAMPUS

By BETH DURKEE, '33

HORSE SHOW

ON April 30th, accompanied by a steady down pour, the Second Annual Hollins Horse Show took place. Many entered the lists from nearby places, Roanoke County, Roanoke City, Bedford, Blacksburg, Lexington among the entrants.

In spite of the 'heavy going' and the slippery condition of the ring, the jumping went off without a spill.

Shows at Bedford, Blacksburg and Roanoke followed the Hollins show. All were entered by members of the Hollins Riding Club who in each instance took honors. Hollins riders, prominently mentioned in the press reports, of these horse shows were: Kay Schmidt, president of the Riding Club, Cynthia Webb, Frances Boykin, Dorothy Hunt, Marion Hamilton, Dorothy Hardinge, Barbara Van Dyke, Mary Creech, Susanna Turner, Mary Ann Donnenbaum, Leonora Alexander, Nancy Long and Margaret Brown.

MAY DAY

Spring came to Hollins for May Day, May 7th. Never had a queen a more lovely day for a coronation than had May Ruggles Nelson and her court this year. The production, under the direction of Freya, took the form of the old English May Day. There was Maypole and dancing on the village green and a trio of delightful mummers. The story centered around the love of a queen for one of her villagers, and was in two scenes. The first was a meeting in the queen's own garden, where the lover played by Dorothy Sorg, '32, brought word that the queen was to be the village May queen on the morrow. At the end of the scene the lover is discovered by the court chamberlain and sent off to the stocks. In the second scene, the village green is the setting. There the lover and two other men are in the stocks, whereon being discovered by the mummers, the prisoners are promptly disguised by having to don parts of the grotesque masks worn by the mummers. While the mummers are entertaining the villagers, the queen arrives, seated on a beautiful black horse, and attended by her court. She is gaily welcomed and crowned Queen of the May, and the villagers entertain her with the May-pole dances, after the dances, at the request of a villager, she orders the men released from the stocks and so recognizes her lover. She chooses him for her partner, and after a dance together they run away amid the excitement of the villagers.

The production was well staged and well acted and was particularly colorful. Tradition was followed as closely as possible in costumes, music and dances, and May Day was proclaimed one of the best in years by many of the large audience attending.

MAY DAY, 1932, "PEYTON UNIVERSITY"

By ALBERT KIRVEN COCKE

Dorothy Sorg, a student of Dramatics at Hollins, wrote a fairy play called "Little Nixie Pixie Folk" for Peyton University.

I took the part of a Brownie as I was the smaller. Ludy took the part of Peter. Esten Cooke was his sister, Jane, and Henrietta Fletcher was Patsy, his younger sister. Rosa Fletcher, whose mother some years ago had been the Freya's May queen, impersonated the queen. Dorothy directed the play.

We did not rehearse but twice because Rosa, Patsy and Esten lived in Lexington and it was difficult for them to visit us, as Lexington is forty-five miles from Hollins.

The sun arose bright and glorious on May morn. Ludy, Miss Bessie and a few girls got up early and bedecked the throne and pony cart with dogwood which Peyton University had collected the day before. May morning, Miss Bessie, the cast and others marched cheerily to a small woodland. There I crowned the queen.

After the coronation we walked to the Hollins gate, where Ludy and I put the little girls in the pony cart and the procession formed. I blew a blast on a trumpet and we marched with the Hollins students two by two behind us around the front campus to the stage.

I put on my costume for the play, which was a little green suit that was jagged at the sleeves and at the legs. The play opened with the Brownie hopping about. The Brownie, expecting Peter, Jane and Patsy, laughs as he thinks of the fun they had last summer, but he breaks off as he fears that they might have grown too old to come again. He falls on the ground sobbing. At this moment, Peter, Jane and Patsy enter and startle the fairy who is delighted to see them.

While they are making merry and singing "Little Nixie Folk" the queen enters. The Brownie is so happy he turns a few somersaults, then leads the queen to the throne. She, charmed to have playmates, wants to play with the children. The Brownie says "not to-day" for she is queen. He tells the children to summon the people and sing "Little Nixie Pixie Folk." All the girls lay garlands and willow branches before the queen and walk to breakfast. Peyton University's little May Day has come to a close.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Queen, Rosa Fletcher, is the daughter of Laura Powell Tucker (Mrs. Forest Fletcher),
 '11. "Ludy" who took the part of Peter is Lewis La Mar Janney, son of Professor and Mrs. F. La Mar Janney.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK-END

So we came at last to commencement week-end, long awaited by '32. The program was as full as ever and was exceptionally interesting this year. The commencement play was "Lilies of the Field," an amusing, modern comedy which pleased the large audience very much. In spite of cold weather, the senior vesper service was held in the Forest of Arden. Miss Agnes Sanders, A. B., '24, and the sponsor of '32, spoke to the class. The Baccalaureate Service combined appropriate music by the chapel choir and an inspiring sermon by Dr. Frank C. Morgan.

The Seniors were fortunate in having fair weather for Monday's activities. Class Day exercises were held in the Lucy Preston Beale Memorial Garden. The Garden Party, in the late afternoon, was held in the Forest of Arden.

Of special interest at the Commencement Concert were the two symphonies, "Overture in C Major" by Ruth Johnson and "Sinbad and the Whale Story" by Julia Lamar, both members of the Class of '32 who received B. M. Degrees. Both of the compositions were played by the Hæsche Ensemble Club and directed by the composers.

The Bonfire was held in the Little Theatre. The stage was set as a formal garden when Kit Witschen read each Seniors' fortune in a large gazing ball.

After the daisy chain ceremony, the Seniors adjourned to their farewell banquet at Tinker Tea House. The evening closed with the Senior-Junior serenades.

The commencement exercise on Tuesday morning were distinguished by the fine address made by Dean Gauss of Princeton University. Dean Gauss has been the guest of Hollins College previous to this visit and was particularly welcome.

It was on this occasion that Miss Hazel Burnham's composition "Quartet, D Minor, Second Movement" was played. The composition was written for stringed instruments. Miss Burnham is the teacher of violin of the School of Music.

Great satisfaction was evinced by the applause which greeted the announcement that the Jane Cocke Funkhouser had been won by Leonora Alexander, Student Government President during her senior year.

Thus the year closed with the ceremonial transference of caps and gowns, and Kit Witschen pronounced the Class of 1932 adjourned till 1934, its first Reunion date.

Good luck to them all as they join the ranks of loyal Alumnae.

Alumnae Represent Hollins College at Inaugurals

ON APRIL 8th, Dr. Dice Robins Anderson became President of Wesleyan College at Macon, Georgia. The occasion was marked by a most interesting ceremony, during which the outstanding colleges and universities of the East and South participated.

It so happened that at the last moment Miss Matty Cocke was unable to accept the invitation to represent Hollins College. Hollins was, however, most fortunate in that two of her Alumnae were able to be present as Miss Matty's representatives and to extend her greetings to President Anderson. Katherine McClure (Mrs. Peyton T. Anderson), A. B., '28, and Elizabeth McCaw, A. B., '24, both of Macon, Georgia, gladly complied with the request to take part in the celebration as representatives of Hollins College.

The great procession of visiting educators, faculty and students of Wesleyan, representatives from the Wesleyan Alumnae Association numbered some seven hundred.

Dr. David Allen Robertson, in a notable address, greeted Dr. Anderson for the women's colleges of the country.

The procession was formed on the basis of date of founding and Hollins stood fourth in the women's colleges as our representatives took their places in the line.

Katherine McClure Anderson, in writing of the occasion, closed her letter by saying, "So many people were disappointed that Miss Matty was unable to come. Mrs. O. L. Stevens (Lillian Dunlap), '86, was planning a tea for her and all of the Alumnae in Macon were hoping to be able to entertain her.

"It was a great pleasure to represent Hollins and I deeply appreciate the confidence."

A letter from Elizabeth McCaw expressed the same feeling and told of the various festivities that accompanied the inauguration. Judging from their enthusiastic accounts of the splendid gathering, Hollins was ably and enthusiastically represented.

On Tuesday evening, June 21, in the Brooklyn Academy of Music, Hollins College was represented by Gertrud Rath at the inauguration of Dr. William A. Boylan as the first President of Brooklyn College. One hundred and sixty-seven colleges and universities from all over the country were represented in the academic procession, as well as sixty-one associations and learned societies.

The program included addresses by President Cooper, of New York University, President Robinson, of City College and Dean Hill, of Hunter College. A telegram from the Honorable James J. Walker, a former pupil of the new President Boylan, was read during the evening and was greeted with enthusiasm.

Brooklyn College has just completed the fourth year of its history. It is part of the New York City public school system and promises to grow to larger dimensions even than its sister institutions in Manhattan, Hunter College and the College of the City of New York. Its chief problem is securing grounds and permanent buildings. Classes are now held in temporary, makeshift quarters in the business section of Brooklyn.

At the conclusion of the inaugural exercises, the first commencement exercises were held, ending impressively with the conferring of degrees upon the first graduating class and the administration of the Ephebic Oath of devotion to the City of New York.

CHAPTER NEWS

BALTIMORE:

I am tremendously interested in the Chapter letter of March 24th in which the matter of Student Selection as an organized Alumnae activity is discussed. I feel that it is something that will appeal to Alumnae everywhere. We have a meeting the last of this month (May) and then I shall go about arranging a working plan for committees, etc.

I feel that as well as an information committee, here in Baltimore, we also need a publicity committee to acquaint Baltimore with Hollins. . . . I am going to try to arrange these matters so that we can do some worthwhile work.

The Chapter had a benefit Bridge on May 16th at the Woman's City Club. This was followed by a "tea" about the 25th at the home of Mrs. Nowlin (Elizabeth Marshall), '17.

BESSIE MARTIN CABELL, '14, President.

CHICAGO:

The Chicago Chapter writes that they have some difficulty in arranging a meeting time.

However, the Chapter had a good Founder's Day luncheon meeting at the College Club. Mrs. Lucas (Marguerite Williams), '18, came the considerable distance from South Bend, Indiana, to attend the meeting. Two other most welcome guests were Rachel Wilson, '12, who is studying at the University of Chicago during a leave of absence from Hollins College, where she is Professor of French, and Marjorie Fort, '28, head of the Children's Repertoire Theatre, of East Orange, New Jersey. Mary Lou Mayo Freytag writes, "I only wish that I could be with you all at Commencement, and I hope that as always, this one will be the best ever."

A letter recently arrived from the Treasurer, Mary Ethel Baker, sending a substantial payment on the Chapter's pledge to the Endowment Fund. Mary Ethel says that plans are being made to have a very strong chapter next season.

COLUMBUS:

The Ella Kirvin Cocke Chapter accepted its responsibility concerning the raising of Scholarships and Loan Funds at a very early meeting soon after the call was sent out from the Alumnae Office. "I feel that this is a splendid work and the idea of scholarships for the future has renewed much interest in our Chapter," writes Mrs. Hugh C. Martin (Anza Clements), '99, President.

On April 25th the annual card party took place and was a success, both as a gay social event and as a financial effort, for Commencement brought a check from the Columbus Chapter to cover their first payment on the Chapter's Scholarship Fund with the promise that with good fortune, more would follow.

LEXINGTON:

On May 18th, the Lexington Chapter had a meeting in the home of the president for the purpose of bringing together prospective college students interested in Hollins College, their parents, Hollins Alumnae and present Hollins students. The president of the Chapter invited Marguerite Hearsey, A. B., '14, Professor of English, to speak on the academic advantages of Hollins. Dorothy Sorg, '32, was invited to speak on the extra curricula interests at Hollins. These two speakers were introduced by the Alumnae Secretary, Ruth Crupper Reeves.

A delightful tea party followed the meeting and old friends had an opportunity to chat about Hollins. The meeting was a distinct success and much interest was evident on the part of all who attended.

MARY MONROE PENICK, B. M., '26,
President.

LOUISVILLE:

The Louisville Chapter has started its study group to "learn about Hollins," in order to be able to answer questions when interviewing prospective students.

We are anticipating doing something toward founding a Louisville Scholarship as soon as we can.

Mrs. Stuart Campbell (Elizabeth Tinsley), A. B., '19, represented the Chapter at the Alumnae meeting May 28th.

NEW YORK CITY:

The A. T. L. Kusian Chapter held its annual meeting in the Hollins Center at the Hotel Roosevelt, on Sunday, April 10th. "Stoney Stuart" brought her eleven-year-old daughter, Jean, and announced that already Jean has such a love for Hollins that nothing is apt to induce her to go to any other college. Judging from Jean's attentiveness throughout the meeting, we believe that this is true, and certainly we advocate "Stoney's" policy of "bringing them up in the way they should go" to all Hollins mothers.

Audrey Lumpkin, Chairman of the Card Party Committee, reported that the net proceeds from the Bridge held in the Hotel Roosevelt amounted to $304.35. This report was greeted with enthusiasm and a standing vote of thanks was given to Audrey and her committee. Special features of this year's party were the coöperation of the New York Pan-Hellenic, which took six tables and the door prize of a $20.00 hat, donated by Madame Nevarte, of 607 Fifth Avenue. The proceeds from this activity go to the Scholarship Fund for immediate use.

Beatrice Bosley, Chairman of the Nominating Committee, presented the following slate, which was elected:

For President, Annie Moomaw (Mrs. H. L. Schmelz), '01; Vice President, Camilla McKinney, '19; Secretary, Gertrud Rath, '22; Treasurer, Jane Geer, '28; Representative to Alumnae Advisory Council, Lalla Burton (Mrs. Charles B. Gary).

The New York City Chapter definitely committed itself to work on the Scholarship and Loan Fund program coupled with the work on Student Selection. A committee was appointed to inform themselves sufficiently about Hollins from the standpoint of curriculum, entrance requirements, academic and social life of Hollins, in order that the Chapter might be prepared to arrange interviews between this group and prospective Hollins students. This committee was as follows: Dr. Dabney Moon Adams (Dabney Moon), A. B., '15; Mrs. John Hammond (Clara Thornhill), honorary member of the New York Chapter, former member of the Hollins College Faculty; Mrs. Lowry Dale (Sarah Geer), '24; Shirley Newbould, '31; Camilla McKinney, '19; Dr. Orlie Pell, honorary member and former member of faculty of Hollins College.

The meeting was addressed by Miss Regney, of the International Student Service, who gave a short talk on the history and present status of International Student Service. She told of the work of Sarah Watson, '06, who is director of the largest International Student House in the world, located in Paris. She called attention, too, to the enthusiastic interest in International Student Service of Leonora Alexander, '32, President of Student Government at Hollins, 1931-1932.

Since this report, a group of four meetings have been arranged at the Hollins Center in the Hotel Roosevelt for the purpose of giving persons who have already made inquiry about Hollins as a possible choice of a college for their daughters, an opportunity to meet Alumnae and friends and ask questions about the College. The meetings were systematically set up so that Alumnae well informed were on hand to receive callers and give out information.

The New York Chapter has also entertained its new members, those of the Class of '32 who live in the vicinity of New York.

GERTRUD RATH, '22, Secretary.

NORFOLK:

Since several Hollins graduates were scheduled to be visiting in Norfolk, we decided to hold our annual gathering at night and at the Norfolk Country Club. A special committee chairman talked with each alumna and made arrangements for a group of twenty-five.

One long banquet table was placed in a lovely, cool, screened-in porch, overlooking the water. Frank Cole culled blue delphinium and snap dragons from her own gardens for the center bowls, which she arranged most artistically.

The Alumnae who gathered 'round to sing that peppy song group beginning "H-O-L-L-I-N-S" were: Dorothy Sorg, of Richmond, Virginia, and Esther Shoup, of Dallas, Texas, Lucy Robinson, of Blackstone, Virginia, and Elizabeth Fooshé, of Norfolk, all of the Class of '32; Mrs. J. E. Anderson (Winnie Hobday), '99; Elizabeth Fentress; Mrs. Ellie Marcus Marx (Ellie Marcus), '00; Mrs. Sam Heller (Saida Seligmann), '10; Mrs. B. H. Walter (Alys Wood), '20; Mrs. G. C. Trumbo (Sunshine Pope), '18; Mrs. E. F. Brinkley (Alma Stanworth), '16; Ellen Shenk; Mabel McPhearson; Esther Roberts; Camilla Ferebee; Dorothy Gilchrist (now on Mediterranean cruise); Elvie Hitchings; Julia Fuqua; Frances Stoakley; Mary Stoakley (now studying at Columbia); Martha Cake; Frances Cole; Margaret White; Ruth Riddick and Harriett Cotton Carr, and Miss Hazel Burnham, honorary member and member of the music faculty of Hollins College.

After the usual opening routine, with reading of minutes and announcements, the incoming officers were elected as follows: Elvie Hitchings, President; Frances Stoakley, Vice President; Harriett Cotton Carr, Secretary; Mabel McPhearson, Treasurer.

Camilla Ferebee congratulated the new officers and announced the speaker of the evening, Frances Stoakley. Frances' subject, "Hollins of the Past, Present and Future," presented the latest Alumnae endeavors and ambitions in the characteristics, sincere and idealistic Stoakley fashion. Coming at the time of day when the minds are open to highest thoughts, these Stoakley-fashioned ideals were most effective.

Dorothy Sorg, one of the visiting and brand new Alumnae, modeled the latest version of graduate poise. In a most natural and delightful way she described a Hollins social routine new and strange to those of us who are not so recently emancipated.

The dinner party idea is quite new to us but proved itself to be so thoroughly worthwhile that we will probably adopt it as a regular thing.

ELVIE HITCHINGS, A. B., '27, Secretary.

NORTHERN OHIO:

Late in January of this year, Mrs. Whittier O. Duffie (Marie Hedges, '24) invited Cleveland Alumnae of Hollins to meet at her home. During the course of the afternoon we learned that the request had come from College that we form an Alumnae chapter here.

It was decided to meet for luncheon at the University Club the first Saturday in February. Due to the comparatively small number of Alumnae in this section, an invitation was also extended to those in Akron, Canton, Warren, Toledo, Painesville and Ashtabula to join with us in forming a district chapter.

The Alumnae list from these cities was divided among the Cleveland girls and we endeavored to get into personal touch with everyone. The list we used came from the Alumnae Office at College. If we have missed anyone through nonregistration there, we would be delighted to welcome you among our number if you care to join with us. Please get in touch with Mrs. Neita R. Christian, 1381 West Seventy-Fourth Place, Cleveland, Ohio, our Secretary, and she will be glad to give you such information as you may desire.

Our efforts were rewarded and sixteen were present at our first meeting, several of this number from out of Cleveland. Following luncheon, Mrs. Duffie acted as temporary chairman, and by a motion from the floor was unanimously elected the first president of the chapter. The other officers included Mrs. Neita Russell Christian, '02, Secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Sneider, '31, Treasurer. Following the election of officers, the president appointed a committee, with Mrs. Clarence B. Briggs (Lydia Speight, ' ) as chairman, to draw up a constitution and have it ready for presentation at the next meeting and we adjourned.

It was also decided to keep the chapter dues at a minimum, and make our monthly luncheon-meetings dutch treat affairs. The meetings this spring have been devoted entirely to the organization of the chapter, and the informal discussion of tentative plans for an expansion program which will make Hollins College well known and highly regarded throughout this district.

We have placed more than usual emphasis on publicity, feeling that in this way we might be making new contacts. Announcements of our meetings have appeared in the daily papers and society magazines of the district as well as personals concerning Alumnae or students. We are fortunate in having a most competent news agent on campus in the person of Mildred Reynolds, '34, so that all important campus news reaches our publicity chairman, Mrs. Thomas A. Eggert (Jean Russell, '26) without delay. In line with our publicity program as most concrete illustration of Hollins activities for prospective students to see, and the pleasure of the Alumnae, we are keeping a chapter log book.

Our log book is a Hollins Memory Book which Mr. Turner sent to us with the compliments of the Alumnae Association when they learned of our plan. The first half is devoted entirely to the chapter. It includes the chapter roll, a copy of the constitution, and press and society notices. The second half deals with Hollins directly, commencing with views of the campus and the history of the College and her founder as told in "A Great Virginia," and concluding to date with pictures of Nineteen Thirty-Two's Horse Show and the May Queen and The Court.

A special meeting was called in June to meet the students from this district who are now enrolled at Hollins. We found them delightfully enthusiastic over our plans, and desires of assisting in every way possible with our expansion program. At this meeting Frances Schmidt, '31, of Toledo, gave a most interesting (to the Alumnae at least) report on the Endowment campaign, the new points of interest on campus and the present requirements for entrance.

The first step in our expansion program was taken the afternoon of Sunday, June 12th, when Mrs. Duffie entertained prospective students and their parents for tea at her home, assisted by the Alumnae and the students.

Our numbers are small, and we are many miles from Hollins, but Hollins' spirit never dies, and we shall do our best to carry on the ideals and dreams of her founder.

PHILADELPHIA:

On April 10th, the Philadelphia Chapter met, Mrs. Joseph Adamson (Mary Lee Wetmore), '15, presiding. Those present heard the interesting report of the meeting of the Alumnae Advisory Council, held at Hollins in February. The report was given by Mrs. E. W. G. Boogher (Betty Reynold), '13. Those of us who have not been privileged to keep as close as we could wish to the activities of that body, certainly felt grateful to Betty for her report and to others who are doing such splendid work.

The Chapter discussed the Scholarship and Loan Fund project. It appealed to all in the group as something that we want to do and we hope to find some way before the year closes to make a beginning at it.

The Philadelphia Chapter is working toward becoming a regional chapter, taking into membership Alumnae in the nearby cities and towns.

Virginia Rath (Dinny), '24, Director of Physical Education at Swarthmore, and Eleanor Wilson, '30, Secretary to the Dean of Men at Swarthmore and who lives in Wilmington, Delaware, were present at this meeting and new and most welcome members.

JULIA THOM EVES, '11, Secretary.

RICHMOND:

The Richmond Chapter held its Bridge on April 12th, with Jessie Pollard, '31, Chairman, assisted by Sally Barret, Elizabeth Benson, Louise Bowers, Elizabeth Hardwicke, Mariam Lecky (Mrs. H. O. Stone), Mary Austin Mann, Helen Starke (Mrs. Ernest Warinner) and Clare Whitfield.

The Chapter took up its work this spring to meet the new program of work growing out of the meetings in February of the Alumnae Board of Directors and the Alumnae Advisory Council. The Chapter had as its guest in April, Mary M. Williamson, A. B., '99, Dean of Students of Hollins College. Miss Williamson spoke to groups of prospective students and otherwise assisted the Chapter in its work in the field of Student Selection. A tea party was given by the Chapter for Miss Williamson at Collegiate School, Jessie Pollard, A. B., '31, was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Mary Hinton Duke, a member of the Richmond Chapter, was Chairman of Alumnae Day and put on a most attractive and successful program.

MRS. HASKIN HOBSON,
(LENA RUDD), '06, President.

SAN ANTONIO:

The San Antonio Chapter has become interested in the new work that the Alumnae Association is offering to its members.

Fannie Lee Lacy (Mrs. Charles Dickson), '08, President, in reviewing Mr. Cocke's article in the April issue of the QUARTERLY on the curriculum, writes, "Hollins has always been a progressive college. I, for one, believe that it has a leadership that has the vision and courage to determine and develop this curriculum that will better prepare the student to meet her times."

The Chapter has met monthly since January in luncheon meetings.

FANNIE LACY DICKSON, President.

TRIANGLE:

On May 9th, the Triangle Chapter (Roanoke, Salem and Hollins) entertained the Class of '32 at a tea party. Alice Huff (Mrs. Clem D. Johnston), '20, opened her beautiful home for the occasion and in spite of a down-pour it was a very festive affair. Julia Kern (Mrs. George Lawson), '13, was chairman.

The annual meeting of the Chapter was held at Tinker Tea House the first Monday in May and the following officers were chosen: President, Dorothy Towles, A. B., '30; Vice President, Elizabeth McCleary; Recording Secretary, Fanny Botsford; Corresponding Secretary, Regina Henebry; Treasurer, Mary Lee Wiltsee.

The Senior Class of girls of Roanoke High School were addressed by three chapter members (Marguerite Hearsey, Dorothy Towles and Elizabeth McCleary) on the academic and campus life of Hollins.

Tinker Tea House will be operated during the summer by Mrs. Settle, who is leasing the Tea House from the Alumnae Association. The Triangle Chapter will assist Mrs. Settle in advertising and in spreading interest in the Friday bridge luncheons at fifty cents a plate to their mutual interests.

URBANA:

Florence Barlow, '12, President, writes that, "the Hollins Alumnae of Urbana are just as enthusiastic over Hollins as ever, and we are always talking it up!" She sent in a most interesting and promising list of prospective students with whom she had made contacts and to whom the Alumnae Office sent catalogues and literature.

WASHINGTON, D. C.:

The Washington Chapter gave its annual card party this season, the proceeds of which came to Hollins as a payment on their Endowment Fund pledge. Alma Nix (Mrs. LeRoy Saunders), '16, was chairman. The party was held in the home of Bessie Cocke (Mrs. Douglas Clark), '15.

Emma Thom, '04, is to be president during the coming year, following the successful administration of Almira Livingston (Mrs. R. W. Waters), '26.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA:

"We, the northerners of western Pennsylvania, met at the Hotel Schenley, Saturday, June 11th. We had a wonderful meeting. There was Nell Hartley (Mrs. Robert J. Agnew), Jane Jones, Gertie McDowell (Mrs. G. F. Seyfert), Janice Price (Mrs. Berringar Marshall), Jane Endsley, Isabel Steele (Mrs.

H. S. Miller and myself. I had planned a program but the questions concerning the modern Hollins flew so fast that I let nature take its course." So writes Agnes Martin (Mrs. Albert S. Skillen), '28, who has led the movement among the Hollins Alumnae of western Pennsylvania to organize.

Plans for chapter work as suggested by the Alumnae Office were laid before the group.

Agnes Martin Skillen was elected to act as chairman until the fall meeting. Everyone present promised to bring another member to this ensuing meeting.

The group expressed the conviction that Hollins College needed a great deal more publicity. They decided to do their share in making it better known in western Pennsylvania.

"We are hoping to give you (editor) something to write about in a few more months!"

AGNES MARTIN SKILLEN, B. M., '28.

PERSONALS

'59

Neal—Mrs. Eliza Neal Huse (Ann Eliza Neal) died at her home in Roanoke, Virginia, about eighteen months ago. Mrs. Huse was ninety-two years of age at the time of her death.

'73

King—It is with regret that we announce the death of Mrs. Martha Olivia Winstead, March 23, 1932. She is survived by her daughters, Mrs. D. R. Bullock (Rosa Winstead), '02, and Mrs. W. V. Gupton (Iva Winstead), '04. "Mrs. Winstead was the first North Carolina girl to go to Hollins," according to the Norfolk, Virginia, Ledger Dispatch of March 25th, in carrying an article on the death of Mrs. Winstead.

ANNIE PHILLIPS FEAGIN

Hollins girls of the '70's will recall the brilliant record of Annie Phillips, classmate and close friend of our "Miss Matty." At the Hollins to-day her achievements would be recorded in terms of Dean's list, Honor Student and outstanding ability in Dramatics. In the old days these attainments were recognized in the presentation of medals and Annie Phillips carried off just about all of them; the scholarship medal, besides those in English Composition, Vocal Music and Reading. In the years since then Mrs. Feagin, with her two children, has visited "Miss Matty" whenever the opportunity permitted. After the death of her husband, she lived with her daughter, Mrs. Humboldt, in Los Angeles, California, and it was there that she died on June 8, 1932.

'91

Turner—Mrs. Erich Rath (Lelia Turner), Mr. Rath, Dean of the School of Music, and Virginia (Dinny) Rath, A. B., '24, will motor to Durango, Mexico, this summer to visit Mrs. Ellis Bonnet (Luise Rath), A. B., '19. Mr. Bonnet is in the Consulate Service.

'93

Davis—Turner—It is with regret that we announce the deaths of Mrs. J. T. Lazarus (Laura Davis) and Mrs. F. C. Righter (Lillian Turner). Laura Davis and Lillian Turner were roommates at Hollins and have kept a warm friendship all through the years. Their deaths occurred only a few weeks apart.

'94

Newsom—Mrs. Goodal Wooten (Ella Newsom), with her husband, Dr. Wooten, will motor to the far west and spend a part of the summer in Southern California. They expect to go on to British Columbia and do some fishing in the Jack London country.

'01

Gresham—J. W. Ivey (Fannie Gresham) has an interesting work in connection with the St. John's Hotel in Charleston, South Carolina. She conducts the Hotel's guests over the historic sections of the city.

'05

A. B., Willingham—Mrs. Howell B. Ermingler (Lila Willingham) suffered severe injuries in a motor accident some weeks ago. Latest news has reported satisfactory progress toward recovery, we are glad to say.

'08

Jones—Mrs. J. G. Low (Katherine Page Jones) has moved to Seattle, Washington, and lives at 1932 Twenty-Fifth Street.

Dixon—Louise Dixon has been teaching Domestic Science in Columbia, South Carolina.

'10

Holland—Mrs. Gerald Creekmore (Bessie Holland) is now residing in New Orleans, where her husband has recently gone to take up his duties as Vice President and General Manager of the American Cotton Coöperative Association.

A. B., Ramsay—Mrs. Fitzhugh B. Richardson (Eudora Ramsay) has been elected National Field Representative for the National Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

'11

Smith—Mrs. Herman Dierks (Julia C. Smith) is living in Paris, France, where her husband is engaged in business. Her address is Morgan Hodges, Paris, France.

McConihay—Mrs. Almah McConihay Wilson will go abroad, where she is planning to take up the study of music again. Alumnæ are interested to keep in touch with the famous composer of "The Green and the Gold."

'12

A. B., Randolph—Bessie Carter Randolph, Ph. D. in International Law, has recently been elected to the Executive Council of the American Society of International Law. She is the third woman to occupy a place on the Council. Miss Randolph is Professor of Political Science at the Florida State College for Women and one of the three Alumnæ members of the Board of Trustees of the Hollins College Corporation.

'13

Hylton—Mrs. T. M. Johnson (Vera Hylton) has recently been elected President of the West Virginia Federation of Music Clubs.

'15

Jemison—Margaret Malone Jemison has, for some years, been librarian at Emory University, Georgia.

'16

Hiss—Anna Hiss is Advisory Director at Camp Waldemar, near Kerrville, Texas.

'17

Bond—Mrs. Charles Whiteman (Edith Bond) has gone to Mount Vernon, New York, to reside. Her new address is 485 Gramatan Avenue.

Starkweather—Dorothy Starkweather has moved to Great Neck, New York, where she lives at No. 8-D Arley Road.

King—Mrs. H. H. Hart (Mary King) has gone to Baltimore to live, where she is situated in Old Orchard Road.

'18

Cochrane—Mrs. Robert H. McClellan has three children. She writes that her eldest daughter will be ready for Hollins in "about six years!"

Bagby—Mrs. C. J. Babalot (Janet Latane Bagby), daughter, Nancy, and Lieutenant Babalot are now stationed at Coronado, California.

'19

Hancock—It is with regret that we announce the death, early in May, of Mrs. Louis Voigt, Jr. (Louise Hancock).

'20
