Hollins Students Work on 'Hamlet' Given at Matinee; "Richeleau" in Evening

WALTER HAMPDEN
Freya is Presented in Recent Convocation

In opening convocation on October 24, Dean Hazel explained that this year, contrary to custom, the organization on campus would not be formally presented to the students. She added, however, that there is one outstanding enough to compare to any other in the synthesis of all the others. This one is Freya. With its ideals it has tried to enrich and broaden education and so has its own place on campus.

Miss Susanna* Tatum, chairwoman for this year, related something of its history. When it was started in 1906, security surrounded all its activities. It dealt with the intangible, its driving force being the beauty of the ideals toward which it strove. A girl joined because of her character and potentialities. As campus needs changed, so did Freya. Its members decided they should not be judges of their fellow students, with the result that the specifications were divided into three groups: Scholarship, leadership and creativity. The first, requiring a very high average, explains itself. The second includes not only the stipulation that a girl should hold important offices in student government, classes, Y. W. C. A., national relations Club, Athletics, Student Senate, but also the necessity that the girl must function well in office. Creativity has to do with work in dramatics, music and graphics. Thus Freya seeks to encourage the development of talent through recognition.

Miss Turner explained that Freya was the name of the Norse goddess of love and beauty, and the springtime is closely connected with May Day as a symbol of the organization. Freya wishes to encourage a girl to reach higher. In closing, Miss Turner expressed the hope that “it may continue to foster higher ideals of a Christian life.”

Convocation on Germany Held by Dr. Marti

HOLLINS ADMITTANCE ANNOUNCED INTO A. U. A.

On Wednesday, November 7, President Besse Carter Randolph opened the formal announcement of the admittance of Hollins to the College Association of Universities of Chicago. This association is composed of thirty institutions, two of which, McGill and Toronto, are in Canada. “Our place on this list,” said Dr. Randolph, “can be attributed to the Hollins graduate work in American universities. Because they have assumed their responsibilities, our graduates from now on will find it much easier to enroll in approved institutions for advanced courses.”

Following this announcement, Dr. Randolph introduced Dr. Leonard Marti, the main speaker of the evening, who briefly gave a few main points of his speech at the conference last summer, particularly in regard to the political campaign of modern truth. “My subject today is ‘Search for a Beautiful, searching treatment,’ he said, “but I shall divide it into two parts—the late conception and my personal conclusion.”

Dr. Marti began his discussion giving a general idea of Hitler's campaign for the nearly, together with a brief retrospect of the agricultural conditions in Germany to-day. In regard to what Hitler has done for the farms, Dr. Marti mentioned two points: First, he has given the farmers the market so that the state can alone continue the war. In this way a former farmer goes on to the standard set up. Secondly, he has guaranteed a fixed price to the farmer by taking his farm products out of the market.

“German starved in 1919 after it lost, but an even greater blow was the loss of its money in 1925. ‘In the next few years, the responsibility lies with its whole way of life. ‘When I was in Germany in 1919,’ continued Dr. Marti, ‘it was a fool’s paradise of peaceful, gentle, well-to-do bourgeois life. There is no longer this small town situation.”

Dr. Marti went on to say that it would be unjust to paint modern Germans as unenlightened folk. On Wednesday night a new black animal was given to the standard set up. Because each animal has its characteristics, there is a conspicuous character of the famous character type.

Although both plays clearly illustrate Mr. Hampden’s ability as a director as well as an actor, he should be particularly noted for his dramatics, music and graphics. Thus Freya seeks to encourage the development of talent through recognition.

Miss Matty Returns from Three Weeks Visit

Miss Matty Cocke and Mrs. Barbie have returned to campus after a three weeks vacation, which they spent visiting in Washington, Richmond and Williamsburg.

While in Washington, Miss Matty was the guest of her niece, Mrs. W. D. Clark, formerly Besse Carter, who entertained the Hollins Alumni Association in honor of Miss Matty. Miss Matty then went on to Richmond, where she visited several friends. Finally, she brought her trip to a close with a day in Williamsburg.

Walter Hampden Appears in "Hamlet" Given at Matinee; "Richeleau" in Evening

HEARTILY RECEIVED

Walter Hampden appeared in plays at the Academy of Music in Roanoke on November 10. He gave Shakespeare’s "Hamlet" at the matinee performance, and Arthur Goodrich’s rendition of Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton’s "Richeleau" in the evening.

Mr. Hampden’s portrayal of “Hamlet” has been highly praised by critics since he first acted the role in 1925. The recent performances both emphasize the expectations of its audience. Superbly directed and played, the plays gave a powerful and convincing picture of the illustrious Danish prince.

"Richeleau" was given in the evening, was particularly outstanding in its second performance not only of Mr. Hampden, but also of the entire cast, and the superb staging and acting.

The cure given to detail was illustrated in two small, but infinitely significant points. The matter of handling the number of people on the stage at one time. The directing was so brilliant that, with a single cast of a small number of people could have given the impression of a big production. In this way, circumstances changing, a great number of people could give the impression of an uncrowded few.

Mr. McCulloch’s production of "Hamlet" is remarkable for it embodies the effective use of various shades of red and green as background, emphasized the brilliancy of the lighting and the precarious position of the famous character named Arturo.

Although both plays clearly illustrate Mr. Hampden’s ability as a director as well as an actor, he should be particularly noted for his dramatics, music and graphics. Thus Freya seeks to encourage the development of talent through recognition.

Miss Turner explained that Freya was the name of the Norse goddess of love and beauty, and the springtime is closely connected with May Day as a symbol of the organization. Freya wishes to encourage a girl to reach higher. In closing, Miss Turner expressed the hope that “it may continue to foster higher ideals of a Christian life.”

Dr. Marti stressed the fact that they who were once so enamored by their fair country, they who were charmed by their intellectual accomplishments, so enwrapped by their brassy background, are now considered highbrows, modernists and internationalists. For the day was long ago since we have fallen from their seat of honor. Under Hitler, the emphasis is not on truth for the sake’s sake, but upon prouder truth for Germany’s sake.

The idea of Germany, according to Dr. Marti, appealed to the American nation as the country which should build up and preserve the love of beauty. It is in Germany, as well as many other European countries, is not in a position to do this, the responsibility lies with its whole way of life. ‘When I was in Germany in 1919,’ continued Dr. Marti, ‘it was a fool’s paradise of peaceful, gentle, well-to-do bourgeois life. There is no longer this small town situation.”

Dr. Marti went on to say that it would be unjust to paint modern Germans as unenlightened folk. On Wednesday night a new black animal was given to the standard set up. Because each animal has its characteristics, there is a conspicuous character of the famous character type.
