New Constitution Ratified By Student Body

Last week the new constitution was passed by the student body. This majority vote of 218. As can be observed in the revised document itself, the executive council has had a definite aim in this new set-up; that is, of making student government principles clearer and more specific and of achieving a more efficient organization. Accordingly, the present executive council is to be replaced by an executive council and a judicial board. Under this new system the members of the council feel that they are now free of judicial duties, can be more active while a separate judicial board could study more carefully types of cases and penalties. They feel, moreover, that with this change each department may develop better in the coming year.

Executive Council Divides Duties with New Board for Coming Semester

Dr. M. P. Smith to Succeed Miss Blanchard

Newly elected as Dean of Hollins College, Miss Leslie Blanchard will be succeeded by Dr. Mary Plogar Smith as Dean of Hollins College, as announced by President Besse C. Randolph, March 8th. Miss Blanchard will leave at the close of the college session to continue her work towards a Ph. D. in the field of education at Columbia University.

Tribute was paid by Miss Randolph for the service that Miss Blanchard has been doing, both with students and faculty, since she assumed her office in 1936. In addition to her duties as dean, she conducted a course on Modern Education and was an active member and officer in educational organizations of the day. Miss Blanchard did her undergraduate work at Stanford University and received her M. A. from the University of Chicago.

Miss Smith, who will enter the deanship in the fall, is now associate professor of economics and sociology, and chairman of her department at Franklin and Marshall College. She received her A. B. at the University of Pennsylvania and did graduate work in the University of North Carolina. Before entering Hollins in 1932, she held positions at the University of North Carolina and the University of Chicago.

Miss Smith expresses the hope that we shall “go forward and build on the fine work that is being done at Hollins.” She feels that we should carry on the enviable academic reputation our college has.

“One of the finest things about the college is the spirit of cooperation between all of us—students, faculty, administration and alumnas. And with this spirit of cooperation we cannot help but look to the future with courageous expectancy—realism, that, while it has its problems and challenges, it also holds real opportunities.”

Committee Plans Marriage Lecture

A month ago members for the student—administration committee were elected by January. In February, a survey—directory was issued to these elected students, faculty, administration and alumni. This questionnaire that has been presented to the executive council on the marriage lecture will be selected on a basis of the questionnaires that have been presented to the student body.

“What happens in the future,” Chairwoman Blanchard states, “will depend greatly upon the reaction of the student body to this first project.”

Student members of the committee include: Freshmen, Cynthia Collings, Sue Hayward, Sophomores, Diana Wallace, Lois Bissell; Juniors, Frances Peters, Anne Brinkley; Seniors, Margaret Jones, Jane Hildreth. Faculty members include Dean Blanchard, Dr. M. P. Smith, Miss R. W. Smith, Dr. Patterson and Miss M. Maddy.

Turner Fund Increased By Collected Pledges

With $22,65 collected in pledges, the total of the Turner Hall Fund is now $13,216. By various activities, the Turner Hall committee plans to have a cornerstone and corners of Turner Hall finished by the end of the year. The money is to be collected in a portion of the gift to be given to the college at the end of the year. The money will be used as part of the gift to the school in order to start building Turner Hall, a new dormitory.

Rudd and Goodale Dubbed A. D. A.'s

Last Tuesday those expounders of the modern “daveners,” Ruddworth and Goodale, dubbed toward their way into A. D. A. Goodall, alias Robert L. Goodale, is the seventh faculty member so honored. Mr. Goodale has a distinctive way of purple lettering. His sensitive portrayal of Mozart’s conversion to the stage was performed by George Gershwin (B. Rudd) was what is commonly called a pantomime.

Of Dr. Janney’s invitation “way back in the 1920’s he retains vivid memories. On being perched on a cornerstone sans shoes, he was ordered to make a speech. He blushed, gasped, said nothing. Then, glancing past his quaking knees, Dr. Janney spied, protruding from box No. 2, ‘that flogged, flogged, flogged, flogged, flogged, and flogged too. From this inspiring vision he made the speech that gave him instant admission to the program. Through now he says, weightily, ‘I still don’t know why they took me in—I don’t think I’m funny.’

When we cross-question the irrepressible E. Foster Doucet, he giddily cracked, “ADA—what do I think of ADA? It’s a fine thing. A real tonic. It does have institution good, particularly an old one.” It was hopeless to find out the faculty members’ choice of a fanatical ADA, for, as Mr. Dowell says, “It’s just not the finest piece of butter.”

Thirty-Two on Dean’s List for First Semester

Change in Administration

Council Unifies Work

Although they will continue to perform a great many of their previous duties, council will devote more time to various campus organizations, in an attempt to keep them alive and more unified. It, therefore, with a wholesome orientation throughout the year, putting more emphasis on the spirit of community living.

Board to Study Penalties

The judicial board, on the other hand, will be busy studying types of cases and penalties, and the reaction of students to the various rules. A great deal of this study will be centered around questioning the value of using the penalty method for insuring group cooperation rather than deciding actual penalties. In addition to this the new constitution states that the executive council is to be replaced by a more specific and of achieving a more efficient organization.

This change each department may develop better in the coming year.

The judicial board, on the other hand, will be busy studying types of cases and penalties, and the reaction of students to the various rules. A great deal of this study will be centered around questioning the value of using the penalty method for insuring group cooperation rather than deciding actual penalties. In addition to this the new constitution states that the executive council is to be replaced by a more specific and of achieving a more efficient organization.

This change each department may develop better in the coming year.

Caroline Stephens to Give Senior Piano Recital

On Monday, March 20, at 8:30 P. M., in the chapel, Caroline Stephens will present her Senior Piano Recital as a climax to her four years at Hollins. Her program is made up of many well known selections and will proceed as follows:

This will be the first senior recital of the year. Following spring vacation, the next recital will be probably by two Harris, vocal, on the 17th of April. Seniors will continue with these presentations throughout the remainder of the year.

“Stage Door” Will Be Given Saturday in Little Theatre

"Stage Door," written by Edna Ferber and George Kaufman, will be presented as the Dramatic Board’s spring production on Saturday, March 18, at 8:30 P. M., in the Little Theatre.

Centered around life in a New York lab for girls going on the stage, "Stage Door" describes their struggles in getting and holding a job. The eternal question of whether they are to go to Hollywood or cook at home may be more money or more stay on the stage.

The action revolves around Terry Randall, a girl of real dramatic ability, played by Muffy Sicard, who is first attracted to Keith Burgess, a young playwright, elected by J. N. Waddell. When Keith gives up his real chance on the New York stage to write scenarios for Hollywood which will pay better, Terry then turns to David Kingsley, a producer, played by J. W. Hamilton, who gives her her big opportunity in his new play, Nancy Campbell enact's the role of Jean Mattison, who goes to Hollywood while Jeane Allen, as Kaye Hamilton, adds a touch of pathos. Reece Peters takes the part of clever Judith Caudle with Peggy Jones in the characterized role of Mrs. Orrell, the owner of the clubhouse. C. C. Graves is Terry's father, Cutty, the maid.

"Although "Stage Door" is a difficult play to produce, it is one with good opportunity for spontaneity and vitality," declares Miss Susie Blair, dramatics professor. Produced on both the stage and in the movies, "Stage Door" should then have a special interest for all.

A new set planned and directed by the properties committee and the play production class is being made here for this production.

Students will be allowed to bring their dates to "Stage Door" with no admission charge.

"Cargoes" Will Come Out Day After Spring Vacation

According to the editor of Cargoes, the Hollins magazine will appear the day after spring vacation.

Although it promises to be slim in poetry, there will probably be three short stories in addition to the usual essays and sketches, Cargoes will also be sporting a small book—more versatile and, the staff feel, better than the usual collection of previous issues. As soon as this number is off the press, work for the next will be started on the mid-spring number.
Students Display Variety of Study Idiosyncrasies

The students of the American College, not unlike any other students, have their unique study habits. Some prefer to study in a quiet room, while others find a bustling cafe more conducive. A few students even study outdoors, finding that the fresh air and natural environment help them concentrate.

Sous la domine

(For those who go on empty heads)

They told us to "under the impression ... right under it."

It seems ... has been completely updated on the learning path.

When you finish your study, it seems that you are not fully ready to face the next challenge. You need to take some time to come back later, when you are more prepared.

When your room arrives, you will see the whole picture of your study. You will see that your study has been updated, that you have completed your study, and that you are ready to move forward.

For those who are returning to study, it seems that you have already made progress. You need to take some time to come back later, when you are more prepared.

For those who return to study, it seems that you have already made progress. You need to take some time to come back later, when you are more prepared.

Nickole Ross only permitted the reporter to take notes on the first sentence of the article. She then disappeared, leaving the reporter to write down her notes.

Now, my dear mate (!), this message was written before I knew I would be writing another position paper on the topic. However, I am still determined to do what I can. I will try to do the best I can.

Students Forum: Class Meetings

Why do they meet all of the time about class meetings?

As I was standing down the quadrangle and sipping on a cup of coffee, I overheard some students talking about class meetings. I thought to myself, "What a waste of time!"

Indeed, some students believe that class meetings are a waste of time. They argue that the meetings are too long, too boring, and too irrelevant to their lives.

Foster Dowell Dineen

Dean Blankard Addresses I.R.C.

Opening his program with "Let's be Smart," Mr. Blankard greeted the group of students who had gathered to hear him. He then proceeded to address the importance of critical thinking, tolerance, and steady spiritual values and aims that the college had to offer.

Because her chance to contribute to the college's spirit and undertakings, there were 1942 here, the college was to have a dearer, richer, more valuable, more cooperative, more delightful experience. We should all remember this experience.

The Night Before Out Plans and Chatterings

"Can this happen to me?" I looked around the room at my fellow students, as we were all gathered in the student center for our final planning session before the weekend. We were discussing our plans for the weekend and our upcoming activities.

"It's true!" I exclaimed, as I pointed to my friend sitting next to me. "I can't believe it!"

"Oh yes," she replied, smiling.

"For our outing this weekend, we are going to the horse show in Lexington," I continued. "I can't wait!"

"I know," she said, as she nodded her head in agreement.

"But, what are we going to do on the way there?"

"We could stop at the Farmer's Market and pick up some fresh vegetables for dinner," she suggested.

"That sounds like a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we could also stop at the horse show and see some of the amazing horses and riders," she added.

"That would be wonderful," I exclaimed.

"We should also make sure to get some pictures of the beautiful scenery," she said.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the horses and riders," she continued.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"We should also make sure to get some pictures of the beautiful scenery," she said.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the horses and riders," she continued.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

The Freshman Poll

We really haven't implemented from the American Institute of Public Opinion. At last, however, we can present to the reader the first group of poll results.

The first group represents a poll of the most popular features of the school year while the second group is an indication of the Freshman Class.

Casually Smart by Rebekah Delilah

"This is the best group ever," I exclaimed, as I looked around the room at my fellow students, as we were all gathered in the student center for our final planning session before the weekend. We were discussing our plans for the weekend and our upcoming activities.

"I can't believe it!" I exclaimed, as I pointed to my friend sitting next to me. "I can't believe it!

"Oh yes," she replied, smiling.

"For our outing this weekend, we are going to the horse show in Lexington," I continued. "I can't wait!"

"I know," she said, as she nodded her head in agreement.

"But, what are we going to do on the way there?"

"We could stop at the Farmer's Market and pick up some fresh vegetables for dinner," she suggested.

"That sounds like a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we could also stop at the horse show and see some of the amazing horses and riders," she added.

"That would be wonderful," I exclaimed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the beautiful scenery," she said.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the horses and riders," she continued.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"We should also make sure to get some pictures of the beautiful scenery," she said.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the horses and riders," she continued.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

The Carnal Pill

We finally presented the American Institute of Public Opinion. At last, however, we can present to the reader the first group of poll results.

The first group represents a poll of the most popular features of the school year while the second group is an indication of the Freshman Class.

Students Forum: Class Meetings

Why do they meet all of the time about class meetings?

As I was standing down the quadrangle and sipping on a cup of coffee, I overheard some students talking about class meetings. I thought to myself, "What a waste of time!"

Indeed, some students believe that class meetings are a waste of time. They argue that the meetings are too long, too boring, and too irrelevant to their lives.

Foster Dowell Dineen

Dean Blankard Addresses I.R.C.

Opening his program with "Let's be Smart," Mr. Blankard greeted the group of students who had gathered to hear him. He then proceeded to address the importance of critical thinking, tolerance, and steady spiritual values and aims that the college had to offer.

Because her chance to contribute to the college's spirit and undertakings, there were 1942 here, the college was to have a dearer, richer, more valuable, more cooperative, more delightful experience. We should all remember this experience.

The Night Before Out Plans and Chatterings

"Can this happen to me?" I looked around the room at my fellow students, as we were all gathered in the student center for our final planning session before the weekend. We were discussing our plans for the weekend and our upcoming activities.

"It's true!" I exclaimed, as I pointed to my friend sitting next to me. "I can't believe it!"

"Oh yes," she replied, smiling.

"For our outing this weekend, we are going to the horse show in Lexington," I continued. "I can't wait!"

"I know," she said, as she nodded her head in agreement.

"But, what are we going to do on the way there?"

"We could stop at the Farmer's Market and pick up some fresh vegetables for dinner," she suggested.

"That sounds like a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we could also stop at the horse show and see some of the amazing horses and riders," she added.

"That would be wonderful," I exclaimed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the beautiful scenery," she said.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the horses and riders," she continued.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"We should also make sure to get some pictures of the beautiful scenery," she said.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the horses and riders," she continued.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

The Freshman Poll

We really haven't implemented from the American Institute of Public Opinion. At last, however, we can present to the reader the first group of poll results.

The first group represents a poll of the most popular features of the school year while the second group is an indication of the Freshman Class.

Casually Smart by Rebekah Delilah

"This is the best group ever," I exclaimed, as I looked around the room at my fellow students, as we were all gathered in the student center for our final planning session before the weekend. We were discussing our plans for the weekend and our upcoming activities.

"I can't believe it!" I exclaimed, as I pointed to my friend sitting next to me. "I can't believe it!

"Oh yes," she replied, smiling.

"For our outing this weekend, we are going to the horse show in Lexington," I continued. "I can't wait!"

"I know," she said, as she nodded her head in agreement.

"But, what are we going to do on the way there?"

"We could stop at the Farmer's Market and pick up some fresh vegetables for dinner," she suggested.

"That sounds like a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we could also stop at the horse show and see some of the amazing horses and riders," she added.

"That would be wonderful," I exclaimed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the beautiful scenery," she said.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the horses and riders," she continued.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"We should also make sure to get some pictures of the beautiful scenery," she said.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.

"And, we should also make sure to get some pictures of the horses and riders," she continued.

"That's a great idea," I agreed.
A new student, evaluation for others.

The day begins now. First, the Marching Band arrives at the school, playing their instruments in sync. The students, dressed in their official uniforms, form ranks and prepare for the first day of school. The excitement is palpable as they anticipate the new academic year.

The day is filled with a variety of events. The students participate in a variety of activities, from sports competitions to academic workshops. The teachers are also busy, preparing lesson plans and ensuring that all students are ready for the upcoming year.

As the day comes to a close, the students return to their dormitories, tired but satisfied with the day's accomplishments. They reflect on the day's events and look forward to the next day's challenges.
Dear Diary...

Sept 13 — Well, diary, here I am in college at last! Should have written before this, I know, but things have been happening so thick and fast I’ve hardly had time to breathe. Everybody is simply swell — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life! And, oh diary, I’m so relieved, my roommate is the cutest thing! I just love her Southern drawl. The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

At least I think I did. Anyway, I’ll be free by Christmas.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.

The upperclassmen here have the queerest greeting — they throw their arms around each other in cream several times very loudly. I guess it must be something they learned at home. As for the food, it’s actually better than I’d expected, and there just doesn’t seem to be any limit to my appetite. Can’t understand it, because about all we did was to sit in the Little Theater and take tests — I’ve never seen so many friendly girls in all my life — and, oh diary, I just love her Southern drawl.