On Friday, February 27th, at one o'clock, Dr. Albert Julius Carlson will speak before the entire student body at a University of Chicago. Born in Sweden, he came to America when sixteen years of age. After graduating and obtaining his master's degree from Augustana College in Illinois, he obtained his Ph. D. from Lundafrod, Dr. Carlson has been at the University of Chicago since 1904, previously serving on the Faculties at Stanford University and Cornell Institute of Technology.

Six Girls to Model for Heironimus

We're in the army now! The draft board of S. H. Heironimus Co. has called us to the front line of defense in behalf of the spring styles. But, first, we must await commands from the general, Mrs. Bigood, for they are to be given at the department store. On the date of Friday, March 6, the orders for our spring wardrobes will be officially announced. This day has been set aside for an "all-out" occasion. All those who do not bend the order will be subject to court martial.

According to Chink Taylor, in command of the Heironimus expeditionary forces, information will be given out on March 6, on how to be patriotic to our country and at the same time keep up the morale by looking our best. In addition there will be instruction on what you can't buy (of all things) and what you are going to have to substitute, as in the case of rubber for those unmentionables. This spring movement is definitely towards the innovation of new war materials. It's going to be exciting to behold in what way the style lines continue in spite of the drastic changes in production. There may be need to sacrifice your extra coat along with sugar and rubber, but there's no need to sacrifice your beauty.

The following were classified A-I in the divisions of glamour, sophistication and style: Misses Afflick, Betty Chambers, Caroline Gale, Helen Taulman, Pat Wadsworth, and Vickie Vaughn. It's their job to demonstrate the latest equipment in war-time attire.

Holllins College Celebrates Birthday of Founder; Seniors Place Wreaths on Cocke Family Graves

Hollins College honored the birthday of its founder Charles Lewis Cocke, on Saturday, February 21. The Founder's Day Exercises were held at ten o'clock in the Little Theatre. Professor Reinhold Niebuhr, of the Union Theological Seminary in New York City, the guest speaker, talked on "What the Past Century Has Taught Us." The invocation and benedictions were pronounced by the Reverend Richard S. Turner Hall is the United States Government. They have devised a new plan whereby students can order Defense stamps. By buying a stamp a week, a book will be filled by May 4 which is the deadline. The school plans to convert these stamps into bonds and when the government gives the "all-ahead" signal, the bonds may be converted into cash and the construction will start.

However, Turner Hall cannot be built until the emergency is over, although students can continue to raise money in the meantime. Remember "a stamp a day fills an album by May."

Committee Begins Its New Campaign

The Turner Hall Committee has organized an all-out drive this year for both Turner Hall and the United States Government. They have devised a new plan whereby students can order Defense stamps. By buying a stamp a week, a book will be filled by May 4 which is the deadline. The school plans to convert these stamps into bonds and when the government gives the "all-ahead" signal, the bonds may be converted into cash and the construction will start.

I. R. C. Conference Meets at Hollins

On Saturday, February 28, the International Relations Club of Hollins will sponsor a conference, featuring round-table discussions and a talk by K. C. Frasier from Chapel Hill. The I. R. C. has invited similar clubs on Virginia campuses to attend this conference. At present, it expects delegations from the University of Virginia, Sweet Briar, Bridgewater, Southern Seminary, Washington and Lee, and William and Mary.

Randolph to Open Discussions

Registration of all students will take place between 11:00 and 12:30 on Saturday, after lunch, President Randolph will open the conference with a short talk. The conference will then break up into two groups, each of which will carry on a round-table discussion. The topic of the first will be "America at War," while the other will be concerned with "Hemispheric Solidarity."

Frazier Makes Closing Speech

After these discussion groups break up, ten will be served. Later, dinner will be served by Mrs. Keller for all those attending the conference.

That night, closing the I. R. C. Conference, K. C. Frasier, from the University of North Carolina, will address the body of students.

Founder's Day Speakers

On Saturday, February 21 at 2 P. M., the Board of Directors of the Alumnae Association held its mid-year meeting with Suzanne Turner (35) presiding. On Saturday night, President Randolph was at home to the alumnae from 8:30 to 10 o'clock.

The thirteenth session of the Alumnae Advisory Council opened with a business meeting in Presser auditorium on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The president of the Council is Janet Stirling (34), and the representatives to the Council are composed of the Board of Trustees of the college, the administration, the Alumnae Association, students, and both alumnae and non-alumnae members of this faculty.

On Sunday afternoon the Council heard an address by Dr. Mary Rly Lyman, Dean of Sweetbriar College, who discussed "Democracy's Challenge to the Liberal Arts College in the Present and in the Future." After Dean Lyman's address, Dr. Mary Phlegar Smith led an open discussion around this topic. The meeting was held in Presser auditorium and was well attended in addition to Council members, by alumnae visitors, members of the faculty, and members of the student body.

Honorary Society Chooses Members

At 12:30 Saturday night, Preys walked at Hollins. It has always been a tradition for Freya to walk on the night of Charles Lewis Cocke's birthday, Eric Brown and Kay Sanford were selected as new members of Freya. The selection is based on leadership, scholarship, and character.

Under the Dome:

This week our weekly is getting people talking, don't ask why or it'll turn into a full-fledged discussion about the central issue of our time. The topic is not something that can be put to a vote or a referendum. It's a question of our values, our beliefs, our hopes and dreams for the future. It's about what we want to live for, and what we want to leave behind. It's about the kind of world we want our children to inherit.

The main issue this week is the question of education. We've heard a lot about the need to improve our schools, but what does that really mean? Do we want to make the schools more rigorous, or do we want to make them more accessible? Do we want to focus on test scores, or do we want to focus on real-world skills?

The decisions we make about education will determine the kind of future we have. If we want a world where everyone has access to a quality education, then we have to be willing to invest in it. If we want a world where only the wealthy can afford to go to college, then we have to be willing to watch as the rest of us are left behind.

This is a difficult question, and there are no easy answers. But we can't afford to ignore it. We have to have a national dialogue about what kind of future we want for our children, and how we're going to get there.

FOUNDER'S DAY: 1942

The day of the dead is the one day when the souls of the departed are believed to return to our world. It's a time to remember and honor our loved ones, and to celebrate their lives.

This year, we are honoring two people who have made a significant impact on our community. One was a teacher, who devoted her life to educating young minds. The other was a community leader, who worked tirelessly to improve the lives of those around her.

Their legacy lives on in the lives of those who were touched by them. We are grateful to have had them in our lives, and we will continue to carry on their work.

Happy Founder's Day!
The Students Discuss

The Honor System

Lubber Pierce, '43

The Honor System as it stands deserves a great deal more support than we are giving it now. We complain about the numerous "petty" rules included in the Honor System but, after all, there must be a need for those "little" rules or they never would have been made, and where else can you put them under the honor system? We say that double reporting is "tattling," but do we stop to realize that it takes a "big" man to stand up and admit his own individual to understand and accept double reporting as an essential part of the Honor System? We have much to say about not being treated like college women; maybe we'd better grow up and act like college women. "A chain is only as strong as its weakest link..."

Marjorie Fay Underpherd, '44

I realize that there are quite a few minor points in the Honor System here at Hollins of which most of us do not approve; however, you must agree that none of these is essentially wrong. It is impossible for us to say that we'll accept the Honor System except for such-and-such a rule. We knew the rules were when we gave our pledge, at the beginning of our Freshman year; so there is nothing for us to do except to abide by them. In order to get anywhere at all, we must first accept and enforce the System as it now stands; when this becomes effective, we can then go about making it better.

Caroline Gale, '42

The Honor System is the adult way to govern a group such as ours, and I would not have any other method. But some of the petty rules that come under it, should be abolished, leaving those which the majority of the students are behind. The Honor System is an ideal a greater part of which should be practical and down to earth if it is to function.

Heironimus Says

By Muffy Scard

Pat and I have been sitting here discussing spring clothes (Yes, it's true girls. The Almanac says that the weather will turn warm eventually!) We've talked about styles and fashions—but mostly about color. It appears that we'll find the most successful looks for this year. Practical, mannish suits, silk dresses, and tweed outfits will all center around that basic color. But don't plan to get everything dark. Accessories are going to be gay and bright. Fur, for example, will be seen—it's warm and becoming, and a versatile skyscraper to our age. So when that long-jacketed gabardine or twill outfit catches your eye, let's go with it a bright hat, purse (the practical over-the-shoulder bags are THB thing!), gloves, and blouses. The chances are that, with the present situation, money is going to be scarce, so we'll have to get fewer and better clothes—and it's always wise, they tell us, to get a basic color and enlarge our wardrobe around that. Maybe one suit ($25 is the average price), with a gay print to match or contrast, and two sets of accessories that will give us the appearance of being oh, so well-dressed and bright. Remember, too, that morale is important, both for ourselves and the men, and nothing helps it more than feeling, and looking, smart.

An important point: Don't forget Hollins day at Heironimus, with its fashion show. It will be well worth your while to go.

Dear Editor:

We know that this is a time of war and that, consequently, food prices have risen tremendously. We can see why it is impossible now to have three vegetables and a meat at dinner, for instance, as we did previously. However, there is one thing that we just don’t see—that we are sure that this meal does Hollins justice. Then, too, it’s not only us who feel this way—some of the faculty agree.

Don’t you think that a soup-salad supper (that is, a soup and a good salad) would solve the problem? It’s certainly no more expensive.

Jest anybody—or most everybody.

Dear Editor:

There have been some rather vociferous remarks uttered in various bulletin-sessions about “Why can’t we wear riding clothes to lab?” After all, what difference does it make what clothes we wear to lab as long as we go “fully clothed”? It does, I’m sure, detract from our concertive powers. Besides, it would make a great deal of rushing and tearing back to the room and thence to the stables. By the time we get to the stables, we have used energy that could have otherwise been saved.

Another thing, why shouldn’t we be able to wear slacks on campus? Certainly it would save tremendously on clothes, and nowadays that makes a difference. Few people are seen on campus in the afternoon, and I see no reason of vital importance why slacks could not be worn.
