Washington -- A Congressional Symposium on International Women's Year was announced jointly today by Senators Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.) and Representatives Elizabeth Holtzman (D-N.Y.) and Millicent Fenwick (R-N.J.). The one-day Symposium, to be held on Capitol Hill on Wednesday, May 14, is a Congressional response to the United Nations' designation of 1975 as International Women's Year and to the Presidential proclamation calling on all the people of the United States "to proceed with practical and constructive measures for the advancement of women" during this special Year.

"In our view, it is important that 1975 be more than a year of hollow celebration," the four legislators said. "Congress needs to make a concerted effort to examine critically the objectives, goals and plans of International Women's Year so that 1975 becomes a true catalyst of worldwide action to promote equality between men and women."

The Symposium will have two major purposes: to examine current Federal legislation affecting women in the United States and draft recommendations to the 94th Congress for necessary modification of or addition to such legislation; and to review the U.S. role at the June International Women's Year Conference in Mexico City and formulate resolutions to be presented there by the U.S. Delegation.

The Symposium program will include four panels: I. The Political Woman; II. The Social Contract; III. Women and Foreign Policy; and IV. The World Plan of Action. A detailed agenda will be announced at a later date.
