Dear Mildred:

I was deeply touched by your kind letter. Before leaving this historic Conference, I want you to know how proud I am of all of your efforts to make the Tribune such a success, overcoming all obstacles.

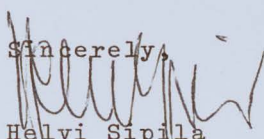

It is only a person such as yourself -- effective, modest, persevering and so talented in human relationships that could have succeeded in this tour de force. I have followed with great interest the developments in the Tribune, and want you to know how many people have expressed to me the thought:

"I shall never be the same again."

And isn't that what all of us desired out of the Tribune: a deep human experience in which the longings of women all over the world for justice and for a better life are palpably experienced on a person-to-person basis.

For creating the setting for these experiences, all of us at the United Nations and women everywhere will be in your debt forever.

Sincerely,

Helvi Sipilä
