Romans live on through tombs

"The Roman Way of Death" will be the topic of the Classical Art Symposium to be held Wednesday, Feb. 16 and Thursday, Feb. 17 at Hollins.

Diana E. E. Kleiner, assistant professor of art history at the University of Va. will give the first of two lectures on Wednesday. She will speak about "Houses of the Dead: Tombs in the Roman World" at 4:30 p.m. in the Green Drawing Room.

Dr. Kleiner received her B.A. magna cum laude from Smith College in 1969 and her M.A. in 1970. She earned her Ph.D. in 1976 at Columbia University.

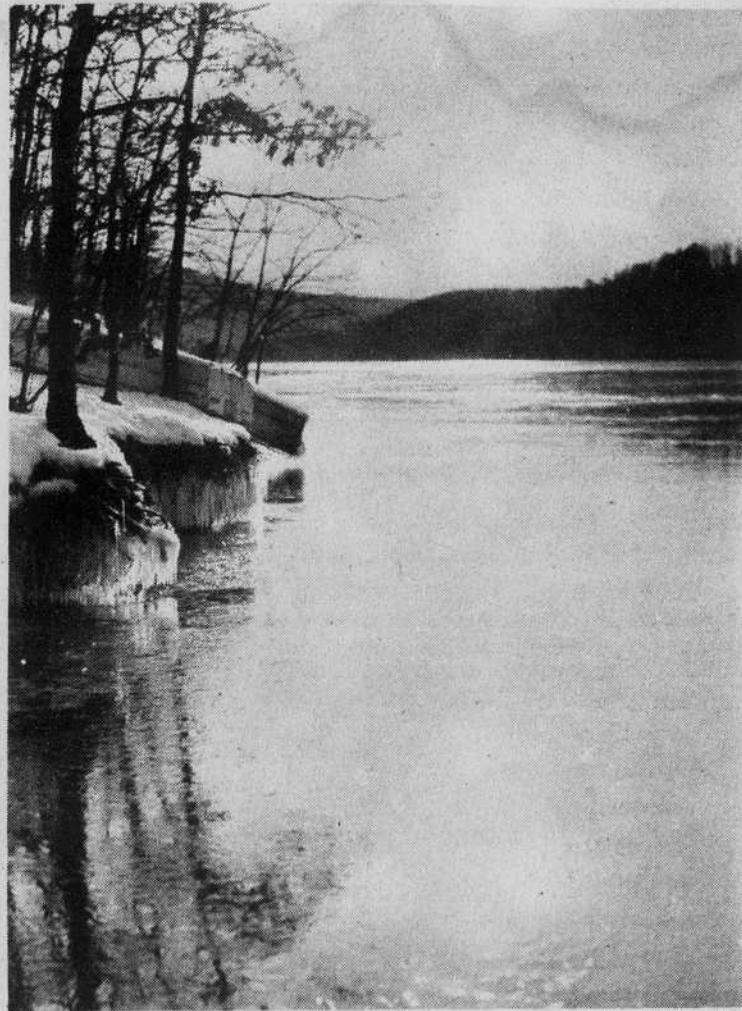

Sheila McNally, professor of art history at the University of Minnesota is director of excavations of Diocletian's Palace in Split, Yugoslavia. Her lecture will be "A Tomb in a Palace—Diocletian's Mausoleum" also in the Green Drawing Room at 8:30 p.m. the same day.

Dr. McNally received her B.A. Phi Beta Kappa cum laude from Vassar in 1953, and she received her Ph.D. from Harvard University in 1965.

Fred S. Kleiner, assistant professor of art history at the University of Va. will give a lecture on Thursday at 4:30 p.m. about "Roman Sarcophagi: Myth and Biographer" in the Green Drawing Room.

Dr. Kleiner received his B.A. cum laude from the University of Pennsylvania in 1968 and earned his M.A. in 1969 and Ph.D. in 1973 from Columbia University.

How long 'til Spring?

The snow capped banks of Carvin's Cove, captured here during Short Term, are just part of the unusually cold winter experienced in the Valley.

Flutist Herrin plans recital

Marsha Herrin, will give her senior recital in the duPont Chapel at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 18.

She will perform three pieces on the flute and piano: "Fantaisie Pastorale Hongroise" by Doppler, "Sonata for Flute and Harp" by Hartley, and "Suite for Flute, Jazz Piano, Bass, and Percussion" by Bolling.

Wesley McCune will accompany her on the harpsichord, Brian Dunbar on the drums, and Joe Corne on the string bass.

Gordh featured at Founder's Day activities

A special tradition of Hollins College will be celebrated on Sunday, Feb. 20.

George Gordh, professor of religion, will preach on "The College: A Community with a Calling" at the chapel service at 7:30 p.m. that night. Dr. Gordh's last sermon as an active member of the faculty will relate the current Hollins College to the religious ideals of its founder, Charles Lewis Cocke.

Founder's Day was first started in 1896 to express the campus' admiration and love for Mr. Cocke. Every year on his birthday the seniors make a wreath of magnolia leaves, march up the hill to the cemetery, and lay the wreath on his grave. The faculty will join the procession from the Main Building to the Chapel and to refreshments in the Green Drawing Room after the service.

Junior involved in inauguration

by Kathy Brown

When first interviewed, Nancy Duncan called herself "just a receptionist." But later in the week she was an honored guest at the inauguration of the 39th United States President. Nancy, a junior at Hollins, worked for the entertainment committee at the Inauguration Headquarters in Washington, D.C. for her short term project.

Nancy worked closely with the administration and she believes that this administration will differ from others because it will be much more relaxed.

"We are used to the coat and tie presidents, and now we see Carter in his jeans," she says. "he is also giving many more persons opportunities, especially blacks."

Nancy moved to Alexandria, Va. 15 years ago. She is a Georgia native, but she was not as excited about Carter's election as she was about his inauguration. She helped many renowned personalities arrange lodging and transportation for the week, and she was employed by Cher and Greg Allman as a babysitter during some of the inaugural events.

Other than handling the numerous telephone calls, Nancy helped her employer, Thomas Beard, with arrangements for the televised gala following the inauguration.

Nancy believes that it was truly a "People's Inaugural." The president attended all six of the inaugural balls, arriving at the ball for the state of Georgia last of all. The tickets for the gala were $25, compared to the admission price of about $200 in 1973. Each legislator received two tickets, leaving only a few tickets for the rest of Carter's supporters.

Nancy was involved with many other parts of the inauguration, including a parade, a tour of the schools in the district, an arts and crafts exhibit by the district school students, art exhibits, concerts, a special full-color book to celebrate the inauguration, and an art portfolio. The portfolio was drawn by five renowned artists and consists of 100 prints, $2500 each. The money raised with the sale of these prints was used for financing the Washington museums. The inaugural events started on the 18th and ended on the 22nd.

Although Nancy loves sports and the out-of-doors, she says that she was very pleased with the work that she did during short term. She attended both the gala and the actual inauguration. A psychological services major, she hopes to attend business school after she graduates.

SGA, RLA, Hollins Columns and other organizations on campus have many positions open. Contact the respective presidents or chairpersons of these groups for more information.

Editorial

Finding a niche

At Hollins, an entire college generation is just four years long. Within those four years women establish their territory as leaders or followers, scholars, or party people, musicians or athletes. Friendships are made and most times, grow from the large amount of time spent in each other's company.

Thus, removing one's self from this fast moving, but homogenized setting for a semester or year can be disconcerting. It need not be disastrous, however.

When efforts are made to keep in mind the different places students come from and what was shared to begin with, renewing friendships is highly feasible.

At first, the large amount of ambitious freshmen and the absent 76ers and transfers may cause an "out of it" feeling. We would like to express our hope, however, that any qualms are calmed as you abroaders find your waiting niche as "important" upperclass women, return to campus involvements and studies that welcome your participation and plan for a busy, active senior year.

Turn Down Your Thermostat!

The winter of 1977 should prove to be the most grueling in many years. The entire nation has been affected by the bitter winds and falling temperatures; Hollins is no exception.

Any help you can give by turning down your thermostat to 65° F. during the day and 55° F. at night would be appreciated by both the college and Mr. Carter. Unless the weather gets considerably warmer, the fuel bill will double what it was last year—an increase of $112,000.

SGA Sponsors "Hearty Happening"

The SGA will sponsor a casual mixer to celebrate Valentine's Day tonight from 9-11 p.m. The dance will be held at the Armory. Neither male nor female students need to be escorted as long as they show their identification cards at the door.

The SGA will be running a shuttle service from Hollins to the Armory and back again every 30 minutes for those who do not have rides. There is no admission charge. Beer and soft drinks will be provided for 25 cents each.

Music will be provided by The Grandeurs.

Poet Nemerov Returns

Howard Nemerov, award-winning poet, novelist, and critic, will give two presentations at the college next week in the Green Drawing Room.

He will read from his poetry Tuesday evening (Feb. 15) at 8:15 p.m., and will also give a lecture "The Winter Addresses of Kenneth Burke" Thursday (Feb. 17) at 8:15 p.m.

A native of New York and a graduate of Harvard University, Nemerov is considered one of the foremost poets in the nation. He was writer-in-residence at Hollins during the 1962-63 academic year. From 1963 to 1964 he was consultant in poetry to the Library of Congress. One of his volumes of poetry, "The Blue Swallows", written in 1967 won the Theodore Roethke Award. He is presently on the faculty of Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

Short Term Student Show

The winter work of students that had their short term projects in the art department are being shown in the old bookstore until Saturday, Feb. 19. Works from such classes as Medieval Crafts will be on display.

Some independent study projects for short term include a sculptural look at London, batik, jewelry, a photographic study of winter behavior, and a photographic study of the United States.

BEOG's Available

Basic Educational Opportunity Grant applications for the 1977-78 academic year have been received. Students may obtain a copy in the Financial Aid Office between 9:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. daily.

Freshmen Sponsor Follies

Freshmen Follies will be held in the Little Theatre on Saturday, Feb. 19. Freshmen have been busy raising money by selling doughnuts and having class meetings that consist of both discussion and practice.

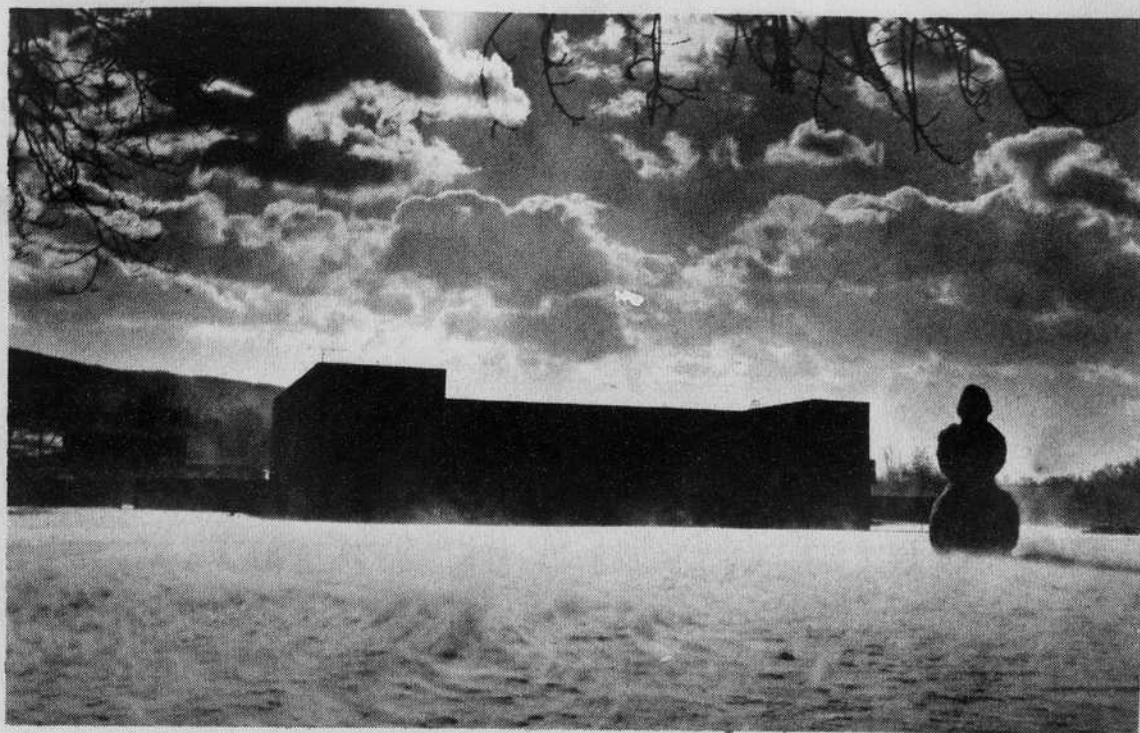

A skit will be held at 7:30 p.m., and a dance will be held afterward. Those freshmen who have paid their dues will be admitted free of charge; those who have not will be charged a dollar to be admitted.

For more information contact Virginia Donnelson (6450).

While you were away . . .

Students and faculty enjoyed the relaxed atmosphere of the campus during short term. President Brewster takes advantage of some newly fallen snow as he throws a snowball. Photo by Linda Lucas

A lone snowman shivers in front of the Moody Center as the wind blows snow in all directions. Cold weather was one of the negative qualities of Hollins' annual short term. Snow lay on the ground most of the month, and the sun added little warmth when it appeared from behind threatening clouds. Snow and low temperatures did not dampen the enthusiasm of the campus, however. They were involved in a variety of activities, including plays, art work, career life workshops, local internships, and independent study. Photo by Linda Lucas

Dear Roomy,

Welcome back! I can't wait to hear about your short term. My short term was fabulous! I never imagined that spending short term on campus could be as much fun as it proved to be.

There was always something to do. The special dinners each Tuesday night included Caribbean, Chinese, Greek, and Mexican menus. We also enjoyed Greek dancing during the Greek dinner.

Short term plays presented Sunday

Billy Jefferson, a graduate student at Hollins, rehearses his role as Bartley in "Riders to the Sea," a play to be presented at the college's Little Theatre, Sunday (Feb. 13). The play is one of two being presented as the culmination of two short term projects. Directing "Riders" will be Maureen Diaz-Albertini, a freshman. Another play, "A Phoenix Too Frequent," will be directed by Pat Thomson, a sophomore. "Riders" is a one-act drama; "Phoenix" is a comedy set in ancient Greece. The plays begin at 8:30 p.m.

Among the SGA movies shown were "The Lion in Winter", "Nicholas and Alexandra", and "Bless the Beasts and the Children".

Each Wednesday night there was a Fireside Chat in the Randolph social room. The revision of the dormitory and social codes were discussed one night and on another night, President Brewster was there.

The reinstatement of distribution requirements was considered at one of the SGA Inquiry Series get-togethers.

SGA Story Hour was held on Sunday nights following Chapel. Susanne Methven (78) read The Wind in the Willows and Peter Pan, and Alexandra Stathakis (78) read from Foxfire.

Sports during short term included even-odd basketball and volleyball where freshmen and juniors played against sophomores and seniors in addition to the regularly scheduled intercollegiate basketball games.

Both students and faculty members gave recitals during short term. Senior recitals were given by Chere Vipperman, Brooke Thompson, and Andrea Beegle.

The VMI Commanders performed at the first SGA dance—a dinner dance, and Woodsmoke played at the second one.

The ski trip to the Homestead was great! The entire adventure—bus trip, some lessons, breakfast, dinner, lodging, and most of all, being with faculty members and their families, administrators, students, and guests was great. And the cost was only $15. It's possible that another trip might be scheduled for second semester, so perhaps you can go the next time.

One afternoon some of us worked jigsaw puzzles and drank hot chocolate in the Rathskeller, and another time we played Jeopardy there.

I especially enjoyed the winter seminar series—an annual series of presentations for the Roanoke Valley community. What was the theme this winter, you ask? JOY in the Middle Ages as expressed in terms of medieval art, poetry, music, and philosophy.

Even more exciting than participating in the various activities sponsored during short term was the opportunity of meeting several of the people involved.

Alexandra Stathakis, vice-president of SGA for Extra-Curricular Activities was very enthusiastic throughout short term. "I met many new people, and we tried to provide varied activities. The attendance at the events didn't really bother me, for those who attended the events really enjoyed them. That made it all worth it." One interesting comment Alexandra made with respect to short term was that it didn't cost that much. "All of the events held in the Rathskeller were funded with money generated in the game room."

The Chaplain Search Committee, headed by Sarah Reiners, held several teas in an effort to provide members of the Hollins community with an opportunity to meet candidates for the chaplaincy. Sarah, RLA President, wanted to emphasize the fact that during second semester more candidates will visit Hollins. Everyone is welcome to attend teas.

I have so much more to tell you, but right now I'm going to the Rathskeller to play Bingo.

Colgater enjoys brush with college

A search for a change of pace sent nine Colgate University students and one student from Mills College in California to Hollins College. They were exchange students for the month of January during short term.

One pre-med senior at Colgate, Desi Diesfeld took a jazz course on the Hollins campus from Mr. Nye. He thought it would be enjoyable meeting Southern women. His first impressions of Hollins were reinforced by his stay. He found that there is a diversity of women at Hollins, including the Southern belle, but the average woman is both intelligent and wealthy.

Desi believes that the women at Hollins are more formal than Northern ones, perhaps because of the lack of the co-ed atmosphere at the nearby men's colleges. He thinks, however, the social life is just as active and pleasing as in the North. He says that he would recommend Hollins to both other male exchange students and to women thinking about Hollins as a full-time school.

The exchange program was a new experience to Desi, although he had held internships away from the Colgate campus previously. He said that it was the most enjoyable short term that he has had. "You can come here and get a good education as well as having a social life," he comments.

He reports that the remainder of the exchange students had an equally enjoyable time at Hollins. Although it was difficult for some of them to interact with so many females at first, several of the Colgate students are in love and plan to return to the campus in the spring.

Desi's only criticism of the college's exchange program is the lack of enough communication before their arrival. He says that everyone was very accommodating. He enjoyed the academic life as well as the social. The professors were enthusiastic as well as open-minded and innovative.

Desi returned to Colgate last week after the completion of his short term project where he will graduate this spring. He plans to attend medical school next year.

Swim team's next meet against Roanoke

by Ellen George

Although there were no swim meets during short term, the team is looking forward to a promising season. The swim team won both of their first meets before Christmas. These meets were against Madison's junior varsity and Randolph Macon. The final scores were 83-29 and 69-44, respectively.

Joan Fallon (79) has already qualified twice for Nationals. Before Christmas she qualified in the 100 Individual Medley with a time of 1:06.8 with the qualifying time being 1:07.9. At a meet against Randolph Macon, Joan qualified for the 200 Individual Medley with a time of 2:22.8 with the qualifying time being 2:27.02.

The swim team encourages the campus to attend their meet on Feb. 17 when they will be swimming at Hollins against Roanoke College. They will also have a meet on Feb. 25 and 26 at Old Dominion University in Norfolk. For further information, contact Mrs. Marcia Bryant, the swim coach at Hollins.

Students on the move

Two students are captured here in the usual chaos involved in moving into a new room. In addition to fifty returning abroad and "on leave" students, over 100 women changed rooms since last term.

Round ballers look to wrap it up with winners

by Ellen George

Although they have worked hard, the College basketball team's record is three wins and six losses. Sandra Garrison (79), the captain, has been playing very well and is fifth in the per game scoring average statewide with a 17.3 average. Mary Elise Yarnall, (80) has an average of 14.4. Ms. Lanetta

Ware, the coach, feels there were several games that they may have won if they had been able to practice more as a team. Other members of the team include Leslie Blankin (79), Chris Dugan (80), Betsy McAllister (80), Rees Moyler (80), Leslie Preston (80), and the scorekeeper, Petunia. With such a young team, they should hopefully do much better next year. The squad still has two more games to play against Sweetbriar and Randolph-Macon. The game against Randy-Mac is in the Tayloe Gym on February 17; come and support the team.
