

Hollins University

Hollins Digital Commons

---

Hollins Student Newspapers

Hollins Student Newspapers

---

4-1-2002

Hollins Columns (2002 Apr 1)

Hollins College

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.hollins.edu/newspapers>

 Part of the Higher Education Commons, Journalism Studies Commons, Social History Commons, United States History Commons, and the Women's History Commons

---

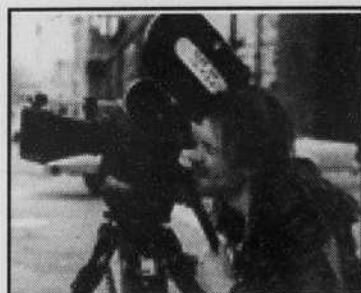

April 1, 2002

Holumns University, Roanoke, VA

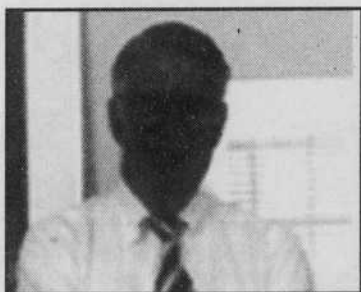

Volume 74, Issue 10

News

Charles Cullen, voted sexiest
man alive
on page 3.

Features

Where's
President
Rugaber?
On page 5.

Sports

Badminton rules!
See why on page 8.

Truth revealed: new president an alien

by Lauren "Big Ed"
Taylor

President-elect Nora Kizer Bell has been revealed for what she really is: an alien from the planet Uranus, sent to earth to brainwash as many college-aged women as possible.

The truth was out there: and the Hollins Columns has found it. The Columns learned that the new president-elect is not who she claimed to be through a thorough investigation.

Bell, the Columns has learned, was originally sent from her home planet to study the effects of crack on college students. She was drawn to the campus by the code word "Levavi Oculos," repeated often in speeches by former president Janet Rasmussen, herself a former inhabitant of Bell's home planet.

This hidden facet of Bell's life was first discovered on her recent visit to the Hollins campus. A large glowing orb had been spotted above the campus the night before, which many believed to be swamp gas. But it was in actuality a space ship carrying the new president.

"I saw this glow coming from near the president's house," said Susan Kirkpatrick '03. "I just assumed it was some sort of wild party for the faculty but then I saw this glowing beam of light shoot down, leaving a woman behind when it disappeared."

Another eyewitness was also amazed by the occur-

Photo courtesy of www.google.com

Uranus resident is happy about the choice for president of Hollins University.

rence. "The strangest thing happened when I saw the president return to the ship," observed Carol Krinkle '04. "She walked around to the back and placed a bumper sticker on the back. As the ship zoomed away, I saw that it said, 'Women who are going places start at Hollins.'"

After these unusual sightings, the Columns undertook a thorough investigation into the allegations. The real motives behind Bell's selection have been revealed. She was sent to accomplish the mission that Rasmussen failed to complete: turning Hollins coed.

When confronted by this information, Interim President Walter Rugaber responded, "That's just plain wrong. There's nothing fuddy duddy about her."

Students and faculty alike have been shocked to learn that Hollins has been run by an alien and that it will continue under alien leadership. "I always thought there was something alien-like about Janet," said Gill Johnson, associate professor of alicantology. "Why else would she use 'Levavi Oculos' in every single speech she ever gave here? They must have some sort of evil master plan."

Secret documents uncovered by the Columns reveal just what that master plan is: Hollins will soon start admitting men, starting with alien men from Bell's home planet.

This comes as a shock to many students. "I just never imagined that Hollins would become alien coed," said Katy Karr '02. "Who had any clue?"

When asked about her alien roots, Bell replied, "My mission is clear. I must Levavi Oculos."

Debate ends early in chaos

by Lisa Bower

Last week three of our nation's greatest minds, Jerry Falwell, Jesse Jackson, and Ellen DeGeneres, met in Fredericksburg to debate issues pertaining to women's rights. A pregnant Anne Heche was chosen to moderate, based on her reputation of being able to maintain a sense of aloof neutrality.

Heche opened the discussion with the topic of abortion. Falwell began the discussion, saying, "God does not approve of abortion." Allegedly DeGeneres muttered, "Well, God doesn't

"Well, God doesn't approve of your mom"

-Ellen DeGeneres

approve of your mom," resulting in Falwell repeatedly asking Heche and the audience if they had heard this. DeGeneres denied saying this, prompting an escalating exchange between the two with Falwell defending his mother's honor and DeGeneres claiming that Falwell was hearing voices.

Jackson interrupted Falwell and DeGeneres by returning to the original topic, saying, "Human life itself is the highest human good and God is the supreme good because he is the giver of life. That is my philosophy."

DeGeneres countered, saying, "What does God have to do with it? We need to think about the government and how it's trying to regulate a woman's body."

SEE DEBATE
PAGE 3

Male "petting zoo" gets administrative approval, set to open next spring

by Randy Allott

Hollins administration approved plans for a select group of men to be kept on campus for students to visit, providing a middle ground for those students wishing to see men without traveling to other campuses, but keeping men out of our classrooms. Funds to construct a small dormitory facility in which to house the men were allocated during a meeting over spring break. The facility will be constructed in the small field behind Siberia parking lot.

Maddie Whipper '03 spearheaded the student group who lobbied for what she terms a "male petting zoo." She's "very thrilled that this dream of mine is finally becoming a reality! Once this is established, I think this is a program we'll be proud of for years to come. I've already got a wish list of men to put in the petting zoo, so hopefully I'll be seeing a lot of Ben Affleck next spring!" Other students were equally thrilled by the news, as Bella Ridge '05 hopes "that a lot of cute guys will be selected, like Josh Hartnett."

Trisha Jones '04 wants "guys that are willing to go to campus events and are cute, but still smart, maybe someone like Benicio del Toro."

Men will be selected for a semester-long stay on campus after being nominated by students and approved by a student committee. Men may also volunteer to be in residence on campus, but they must still go through the selection committee for approval. For a small fee, students will be able to visit with the men for half an hour and feed them snacks. The men will be allowed outdoors in a small fenced area with the visiting students, but must remain inside the designated Male Residency Area, and are not permitted in the dorms, though there are talks of allowing them to attend campus social functions such as Cotillion.

"I've already got a wish list of men to put in the petting zoo, so hopefully I'll be seeing a lot of Ben Affleck next spring!"

-Maddie Whipper '03

Students interested in serving on the selection committee may submit their resumes and applications to the newly formed Male Residency Office, located in Moody 3P, by the end of this semester. Nomination forms for males will be available April 15, and the office will begin accepting nominations for males May 1. The head of the Male Residency Office, Bette Merchant, says she hopes "students will take an active part in the decision making process to create the best Male Residency program possible. With their help, we hope to have the finalized list of men by Oct. 14, 2002."

Nomination forms for males will be available April 15.

Hollins Columns

Editor-in-Chief Lauren "Big Ed" Taylor

News Editor Lindsay Durango

Features Editor Angie Jeffreys

Copy Editor Cecily Farrar

Photo Editor Hand E. Cap

Layout Editor Lether Score

Columnist Lisa Maniker

Advertising Kasey Freedman

Business Maggie Hunt

Circulation Nicole Bower

Writers

Austin Bouffard, Lisa Bower, Nicole Bower, Annmarie Curtis, Lindsay Durango, Bonnie Ellman, Cecily Farrar, Kasey Freedman, Casey Hollins, Angie Jeffreys, Lisa Maniker, Jennifer Martin, Kelly McCarty, Lauren Taylor

Photographers

Nicole Bower, Stephanie House, Erin Wommack

Layout Staff

Austin Bouffard, Betsy Coe, Jeilenn Gerlach, Janet Lubas, Lauren Taylor, Rabia Zafar

Staff editorials and letters to the editor do not necessarily reflect the opinions or policies of Hollins University or the Hollins Columns.

We welcome letters from all members of the community. Please include your signature, address, and for verification only, a phone number where you can be reached. Unsigned letters will not be published. Because of the volume we receive, we regret we can only publish a portion of them. Letters should be left in the Hollins Columns box in the campus post office.

Chicken Man named Sexiest Man Alive

by Funky Chicken

Public access visionary. Independent filmmaker. Alternative media practitioner. That weirdo who runs the loop. The Chicken Man. Charles Cullen is a man of many titles, but never before has he been called Sexiest Man Alive.

During the first annual Hollins Sexiest Man Alive contest, students cast ballots in Moody for their favorite stud muffin. Hollins women bypassed more traditional choices like Tom Cruise or Denzel Washington and selected the eccentric Cullen, who is best known for creating the public access shows: "Charles Cullen's Worst Puppet Shows Ever Made," "Charles Cullen's Worst Music Videos Ever Made," "Chicken Chat," and "Local Livestock."

Student reaction to Cullen's victory has been mixed. Cullen's detractors often replied "Ew, gross" or "I can't think of anyone less sexy than the Chicken Man," but apparently the Chicken Man has quite the cult following at Hollins. "There's just something about a man who wears a scrunchie," said Marge Simpson '03.

"Is he that creepy guy with the permed hair who comes on Channel Nine?" said Edna Krabappel '04, who cast her vote for Carrot Top.

"The Chicken Man crossdresses and raises chickens. You can't say that about Brad Pitt," said Jessica Lovejoy '02. Indeed, Cullen is a man who appreciates the finer things in life like cheap beer, Mexican puppets and the friendship of philosophy professor James Downey.

"I started taking classes with Professor Downey in the hopes of meeting the Chicken Man, but now Downey is threatening to call security if he finds me in the bushes outside his house again," said Selma Bouvier '05, who has clearly crossed that fine line between admiration and stalking.

The Chicken Man is an appropriate choice to represent Hollins because the majestic chicken is the unofficial mascot of the Creative Writing program. Cullen owns many chickens and often features them on "Chicken Chat" and "Local Livestock."

Cullen's unique talents are not just limited to raising livestock. He is a musician who often performs original songs on his shows, occasionally dressed in women's clothing. His songs are bizarrely funny and earthy, sort of like if someone tried to write country music while under the influence of hallucinogenic drugs. Cullen is the composer of classic songs like "Real Nice Fat Girl" and "Granddaddy Bought Me a Copperhead." Cullen also puts on puppet shows concerning the life of a Mariachi puppet.

Cullen may possibly be a fan of Hollins because he is often spotted running on the loop, and he once performed in the theatre. This gives Cullen's fans a reason to live. "I have been walking the loop for three hours every night in order to see the Chicken Man. I haven't been able to get up the courage to wave to him yet but I have lost 10 pounds," said Lurleen Lumpkin '04.

For his outstanding achievement in the field of sexiness, Cullen will be awarded an extra large Hollins T-shirt, an order of cheese sticks from the Rat and the right to run the loop without being asked to leave by security.

Photo courtesy of www.cullenstudios.freeyellow.com

Chicken Man scopes out feathered friends pecking away on the Hollins campus recently.

Don't get too excited girls, Cullen is already taken. He'll be marrying Chicken Little in November. See page 6 for a surprise wedding announcement!

Order your Charles Cullen
films today!

<http://cullenstudios.freeyellow.com>

Debate

FROM PAGE 1

At this, Heche emerged from behind her podium and said, "Does it look like I'm being regulated?" Heche then started twirling around, rubbing her hands over her stomach while humming.

Jackson rolled his eyes and said, "What is she doing? I thought this was going to be a real debate. I'm leaving."

After Jackson left, Falwell responded to DeGeneres. "That's the problem with you people. I'm not prejudiced but if you'd just realize that God has everything to do with it then you'd be normal. I mean, look at Ms. Heche she saw the err in her ways."

DeGeneres answered, "Normal? What the hell is normal? This isn't a debate. Look at our moderator; she's a big round balloon filled with helium."

The debate ended with DeGeneres leaving and Falwell making a speech about the importance of religion in America and how the government and schools need to catch up. Anne Heche eventually sat down looking tired and a little confused.

Did you miss the debate the first time?

Catch the special showing in the Rat
Monday, April 1
9:00 p.m.

Sponsored by the Women's Studies Department

Photo courtesy of <http://www.cullenstudios.freeyellow.com>

Some of Charles Cullen's "sexy" films include: Boogiemán, Boogiemán, A Modern Day Western, Super Badass, and Night of the Bums. Cullen can also be seen on Cox Communications channel 9.

Where we'll be in 10 years

by Annmarie Curtis

Graduation is looming on the horizon and seniors are looking ahead to the job markets. Some seniors have chosen very intriguing career paths.

For instance, Sarah Chapman, a theater major is planning to move to New York and become a waitress in hopes that her acting career will take off. "It's harder to get a job in New York as a waitress than it is to find a job as an actress," reminds Chapman's best friend, Jen Woolley, also a theater major. However, Woolley has offered to share her cardboard box on 8th Ave with Chapman. Woolley also plans to pursue her acting career by holding up a sign on Broadway that reads, "Will perform social theater skit for beer."

Film major, Mary Goad plans to make waves in the fashion world by accepting her first Oscar in jeans. Of course this will be after she convinces audiences and critics that her company, Nine-Hour Films, does not actually produce films that are nine hours long.

Other seniors plan to go into business for themselves, outside the entertainment industry. Colleen Hagerty plans to open a pirate theme coffee shop called "the Flower of the Bull." Kelly Weingart, English major and friend of Hagerty plans to apply as head coffee wench. However, she confesses that she doesn't know anything about the process of making coffee.

When asked about her future plans, Sarah Feuer, an Art major, says, "I have a few different ideas as to where I'll be in ten years. Maybe I'll be making illustrations for children's books, but I might be applying makeup to people in porno videos or making posters for exciting new mechanical pencils. Of course, you can always fall back on a pizza delivery job, but, as I said, hopefully, I'll be doing those illustrations for children's books."

These seniors have clear plans for their future. They know their options and their obstacles, and they are ready to face them. The future definitely looks bright for these seniors.

Hey You!

by Henrietta Chicken

Hey You!

I'm the chair of an SGA committee and my problem is that my committee members rarely show up for meetings. I've tried changing meeting times to fit their schedules and even calling them the night before to remind them to come. I don't know how I'm supposed to run a successful committee without having anyone to help me.

I'll be graduating this year and I fear that there will be no one to take over my committee work. I've dedicated a lot to my work and to Hollins, so this really saddens me. Do you have any suggestions about how to turn these apathetic students into leaders?

--A Real Hollins Leader
Dear Leader-

If I could solve this problem, then I'd be rich. And if I had a dollar for every time someone said that to me... Seriously, though, I've run into the same problem that you're describing. I've found that calling committee members and leaving messages for them repeatedly works the best.

Committees, as with everything else in life, are cyclical. As sad as it may be, it is possible that no one is particularly interested in what you're doing right now. In a couple of years, it will be revived by some new, star student and will become quite popular. I know that's not much comfort now, but realize that you're doing our campus a lot of good and on behalf of SGA, I thank you.

Hey You!

I'm a senior and the thought of graduating in less than two months is terrifying. I alternate between feeling extremely confident and utterly horrified. I don't know what I will do after May 19. My parents keep telling me I need to get a job as though this is something I haven't realized on my own. I feel like I must decide right here and now what I want to do with the rest of my life, but I cannot. I fear that picking the wrong option will somehow ruin my life. Sometimes

Photo courtesy of www.google.com

I find it difficult to sleep, to concentrate, to do my homework, because all I can think about is getting pushed into the "real world" like a too-small baby bird that is not yet ready to spread its wings. If you could tell me what to do with my life, I would appreciate it. Sign me...

--An Adult?

Dear Adult?-

I can't reassure you enough how normal you're feeling. If you think back to when you had to apply to colleges, I'm sure you'll remember asking yourself the same questions. I know I felt this way when I was applying to colleges; I worried that picking the wrong one would drastically alter the course of my life and I would somehow ruin everything by going to the wrong place. As a fellow senior, let me share what I've learned during my time at Hollins:

Yes, the job you get and the place you move after graduation will alter the course of your life, just like picking Hollins did. But, that's not necessarily bad. Sure, once in a while I still wonder what it would have been like to attend a coed university in a big city and to have classes with hundreds of students. Truly, my entire college career would have been different. Hollins provided opportunities for me that I never imagined possible. Because of my time here, I've studied abroad, done amazing internships, and had the chance to take a Shakespeare class in which there were only three of us. When I reflect on the things I've done while here, I realize that none of my experiences have been bad, just different.

All of us seniors feel the same way about finding jobs and moving out on our own. That doesn't make us ill-prepared; it makes us normal. Just as with picking Hollins, our lives will not be the same if we accept jobs in California or Utah or Kentucky or anywhere else. No matter where we go or what we do, we will have good experiences and somehow everything will work out in the end. If you're meant to do something with your life, then whatever that something is, it will find you.

If you feel as though you're paralyzed with fear, talk to friends, Health Services and the CDC for comfort and wisdom. You'll feel much better.

I look forward to tossing my hat in the air with you on May 19.

E-mail your questions to hollinscolumns@hotmail.com

Where's President Rugaber?

Can you find him in the picture below? Answer on page 6.

Looking for something to complain about?

Call the Women's Studies
Dept. for unlimited resources!
x6251

Create a new fashion sensation!

Buy a handbag made for you specially by Kate Spade out of her Grandmom's undies.

Get some today!

New condoms have arrived! Health Services has restocked their supply of condoms so be sure to pick some up.

Information Sought

Campus Safety Dept.
looking for anyone who has information relating to the stolen TV in West that occurred May, 1952.

We Want You!

250 girls wanted to live in Tinker next year. Call Admissions Office at x6401.

Not wanted:

Hampden-Sydney boys.

Wanted:

Peggy Loyd. Where are you? We want you back!

Wanted:

New President

Wanted:

Freshmen caught walking across Front Quad.

Penalties to be imposed include working with grounds crew picking up cigarette butts, Aquafina bottles, and beer cans.

Help Wanted

Bounty hunter needed to bring in all missing cafeteria plates and utensils.

Help Wanted

English Dept. seeks 93
new professors to teach creative writing seminars. Must be willing to work in Bradley with a stuffed chicken.

Now Hiring

Computer Services is hiring anyone who knows what the heck they're doing! Call x7777 with inquiries.

Now Hiring

Car washer to maintain new Campus Safety vehicles.
Contact Campus Safety
Office for more details,
x6501.

For sale:

Half a dildo. Like new condition.

Personal Ads

SWF loves clubbing in tiny skirts. Seeking tall, dark, and hairy man, any age. Must enjoy attending all Student Activities events. Call x6986 if interested.

SWM enjoys wearing baggy pants with chile peppers on them. In search of anyone who will eat his cooking.

Anybody out there?

SGA looking for candidates for all positions. No experience necessary.

Announcements

Cullen-Little

Charles "Chicken Man" Cullen and Chicken Little are pleased to announce their engagement. Charles is often seen running the loop in black spandex and hosts his own public television program.
Chicken thinks the sky is falling. A Nov. 9, 2003 wedding is planned.

Lordy! Lordy!
Richard Dillard is 40!

Get your Tinker Creek bottled water
today!

** Surgeon General's Warning: Tinker Creek water could cause brain damage, bad breath, and unpleasant stomach problems. Consume with caution.**

lirqA yqqsh
!ySD s'loof

lauqmsa anilloH ert no ysbilor t# betoV

Answer to Where's President
Rugaber, page 5.

There he is!

Opinions

Don't Quote Me

This April Fool's Day, I'd like to impart the campus community with some nuggets of wisdom that I have learned over my four years here at Hollins.

Never eat anything in the cafeteria that is not easily identifiable. There's no need to be adventurous. Adventure can be dangerous when we're talking about things that look like beef but are really pieces of cabbage or some other yummy food.

While I'm dispensing cafeteria advice, I'd just like to inform those who feel the need to butt in line that they need to wait their turn. What does it look like the line of 100 people is doing? Standing there for the fun of it? Yes, I'd love for you to cut in front of me so that we can all wait five more minutes. Thanks a bunch.

Never, never, never allow friends who have been drinking to give you a makeover. It's not a pretty sight. Lipstick seems to take over the entire lower jaw area at times like that. Friends don't let drunk friends use eyeliner.

Always report all incidents to security when it involves missing items. Most likely, security will file the report in the dark depths of the earth, with no investigation ever having been undertaken.

But at least we can all rest assured that our cars will be ticketed as soon as they're parked in the wrong place. Security will fly across campus, lights flashing, to ticket any who dare unload items with their car parked on Front Quad. It's like they have illegal parking radar or something.

Avoid using the last dryer in the laundromat behind West. It eats any and all quarters deposited in the hopes of dry clothes. And if it does actually turn on, it runs on cold air. So, 44 minutes and one dollar later, you still have wet clothes. Consequently, you will be forced to hang your bras and panties over every surface you can find in your room. I had bras hanging from my hanging plant hook the last time this happened.

Never make jello shooters in brownie pans. Eating them with a spoon from a large pan just produces the worst hangover possible the next morning. Use little cups at least please.

When packing to return to Hollins at the start of each year, leave what you don't need at home. There is no need for four red t-shirts or six pairs of flip flops. God only knows how I came to have six pairs of flip flops here but one day I turned around and there they were. I think they multiply when I'm not watching.

For late night TV watching amusement, only "Golden Girls" will do. I'm sure no reminder is needed that they come on every night at 11 p.m. And just for the record, I will not turn out to be the Rose of the group.

As far as writing a thesis goes, don't do it. Do whatever it takes to avoid it. Drop the major, fly to Barbados... it doesn't matter. Just escape before it's too late.

Whenever Hollins has a reception, attend. The good food always comes out whenever someone visits. You know what I mean... the strawberries and kiwi, little cakes, fancy punch, those little triangular sandwiches with tuna salad. Stock up before you leave the reception. You never know what you'll be eating later.

Lisa Maniker

And finally, never graduate. It means you have to look for jobs, cook for yourself, dust and vacuum, and clean your own bathroom. Yuck!

Tying It Together

Lisa Maniker

Many people on campus have asked me why Cecily Farrar, my General Speakers Fund co-chair, and I decided to invite controversial filmmaker Spike Lee to speak at Hollins. Until now, I've kept mum about my true motivations. My answer may both surprise and also shock many or most; it will also elucidate why I've not had the same worries about finding a job after graduation in May.

I will be starring in the next Spike Lee joint, a yet to be titled feature-length film.

Not everyone has the luck, the talent, to count Spike Lee among their future employers. My situation is a combination of both. When I was in Japan this past year, I discovered an ad in the paper requesting all non-Japanese women to attend an open casting session for Spike's next film. My host mother actually saw the ad first and pointed it out to me. She helped me with some of the more unfamiliar words, but I managed to translate the rest myself.

I attended the audition; Spike offered me the role before I even left for the evening. We went to dinner together and discussed our thoughts on how the role should be developed. Since then, all that I've done has been part of an effort to unmask my motivation for the character. That's industry talk for connecting with my part, our becoming one.

Though I know this will be a disappointment, because of confidentiality issues I cannot reveal the film's theme or my character's role at this time.

As a film/photography minor, I've studied Spike's work for years. Between my studies and my upcoming shot at stardom, I thought having Spike on campus would be a way of giving back to the Hollins community, of using my connections to do some good. What's life without a little old-fashioned controversy, after all?

Consider this my graduation gift.

Badminton queens selected for 2004 Olympics

by Lether Score

Taking badminton as a P.E. at Hollins could pay off. Just take a lesson from Lacy "Smasher" Wood '02 and Heather "Scores" Moore '02, competing in the 2004

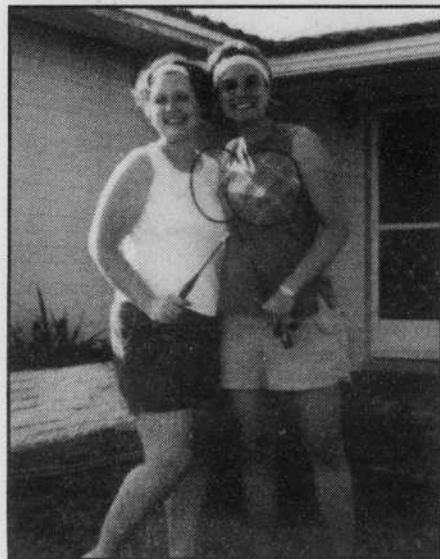

Photo by Bevin Valentine
Spring Break didn't stop Lacy Wood '02 and Heather Moore '02 from practicing.

Olympics for the U.S. Badminton team.

Wood and Moore attribute their success to Coach Haren Karvey, who has helped them achieve their dream to be badminton queens. "Lacy and Heather really sucked when they first entered the class," said Karvey. "But now, they are the most amazing players I have ever seen."

Wood and Moore are thrilled to be traveling to Athens to compete against world class badminton stars. "We're gonna finish them!" said Wood. "Hiyaahhh!"

Practicing long and grueling hours in Tayloe gymnasium prepared the pair for international competition. "We begin at 4 a.m. by sprinting the loop and we don't go to bed until 10 p.m. Anytime we're not in class, we're playing badminton," said Moore.

Their Olympic dreams were almost ruined because of injuries. Wood almost lost her eye during practice. "Heather hit the shuttle and the next thing I knew, I was in the emergency room with a patch over my eye," said Wood. However, the wound healed nicely, just before another devastating accident.

Wood, using her killer smash shot, accidentally hit the shuttle directly into Moore's mouth. "I began to choke. It was so scary," said Moore. Skari Brown '03 was summoned from Chemistry lab to save the day. "I am trained in 45 different maneuvers to save lives. It was difficult to dislodge the shuttle from her throat because the tail was lacerating the victim's throat," said Brown.

After finally having the shuttle removed, Moore was in recovery for three weeks. Campus Safety refuses to comment on the accident.

Benny's Headbands and Stuff sponsors the team and provides them with unlimited headbands and uniforms. "The girls have to have their headbands in order to play well," said Athletic Director Cinda Laukins. "Hollins is so happy that Benny's has agreed to support the students."

Wood and Moore aren't letting the success go to their heads. They plan on remaining at Hollins until graduation, before relocating to the badminton training facility in Rome, Iowa.

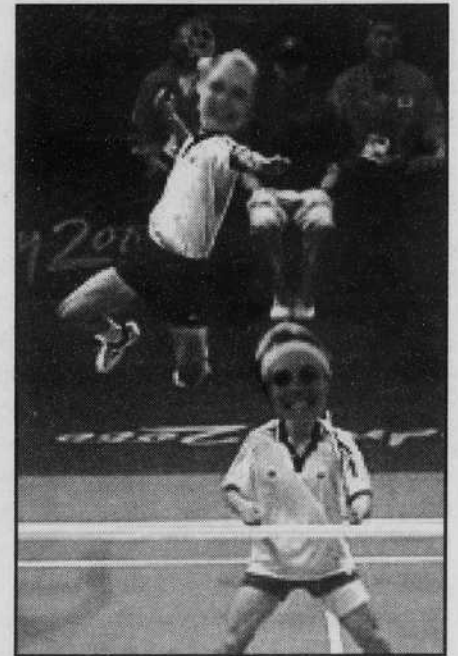

Photo courtesy of www.olympics.com
Wood and Moore demonstrate their aggressive, and sometimes acrobatic, badminton skills.

Housemate Denise Valentine '03 said, "I just love Lacy and Heather. They don't even act like famous people. I hope to one day be as good at badminton as they are."

Upcoming Sports Schedule

Indoor Football

Monday, April 1
6:30 p.m.
Guilford @ HU

Monday, April 8
5:00 p.m.
HU @ UVA

Wednesday, April 10
6:00 p.m.
HU @ VMI

Jello Wrestling

Thursday, April 4
5:30 p.m.
Randolph-Macon
Woman's @ HU

Friday, April 6
6:00 p.m.
Sweet Briar @ HU

Tuesday, April 17
6:00 p.m.
HU @ UNC

X-treme Cow Tipping

Thursday, April 4
9:00 p.m.
Guilford @ HU

Saturday, April 6
9:30 p.m.
HU @ Virginia
Wesleyan

Monday, April 8
9:30 p.m.
Eastern Mennonite @ HU

Underwater Basket Weaving

Friday, April 5
6:00 p.m.
College of Notre Dame @ HU

Monday, April 8
7:00 p.m.
Sweet Briar @ HU

Wednesday, April 10
6:45 p.m.
HU @ W&L

Kangaroo Kickboxing

Tuesday, April 2
5:45 p.m.
Virginia Tech @ HU

Tuesday, April 9
5:00 p.m.
JMU @ HU

Wednesday, April 10
6:00 p.m.
Greensboro @ HU

In case you didn't realize, this is all a joke!
April Fool's!